WASHINGTON, Dec. 10—President Roosevelt today had rallied behind him every man, woman and child in the United States for a long, hard war not only against Japan but Germany and Italy as well—a war in which no result can be accepted “save victory, final and complete.”

The chief executive officially recognized both Hitler and Mussolini as undeclared enemies after taking every possible step to hamstring their agents and nationals in American territory. Meanwhile, official Washington awaited Hitler’s appearance before the Nazi Reichstag today for an anticipated war declaration against the United States in line with the axis joint war plan.

The country knew from the President’s own lips that the first three days of the Pacific war had resulted in serious reverses to U. S. naval, land and air forces, and had heard a solemn warning that neither the Pacific nor Atlantic coastlines are safe from attack.

The commander-in-chief rejected as a “fantastic claim” the Japanese contention that the first single action against Hawaii had gained Tokyo naval supremacy in the Pacific, adding howe: ar:

“We must be set to face a long war against crafty and powerful bandits. The attack at Pearl Harbor can be repeated at any one of many points in both oceans and along both coastlines and against all the rest of the hemisphere.”

Even while the President was broadcasting to the four corners of the earth last night, Japanese troops were attempting to occupy Luzon, principal island in the Philippine group, and the chief executive himself conceded that Guam, Wake and Midway Islands probably had been lost.

All Are Partners

But he pointed out that “every single man, woman and child is a partner in the most tremendous undertaking of our American history,” adding that “we must share together the bad news and the

Berlin Foreign Officials Order Correspondents To Return Home

BERLIN, Dec. 10—All American correspondents in Berlin were barred from foreign office conferences today and told to proceed home as speedily as possible.

This action was taken, an official statement said, because of the arrest of German correspondents in the United States.

There was no indication as to what action, if any, might be taken with regard to the correspondents between now and the time they are able to leave the country.

C. K. HOWARD, 80, DIES AS RESULT OF FALL IN HOME

Charles K. Howard, 80, a retired shoe merchant who had been active in Circleville affairs for many years, died Wednesday at 1 a. m. in Berger Hospital. Mr. Howard was taken to the hospital just a week ago following a fall down a flight of stairs at his home, 143 East Main Street. He had been in failing health for several years.

The funeral will be Friday at 2:30 p. m. at the residence, the Rev. L. C. Sherburne officiating. Burial will be in Forest Cemetery by the Deffenbaugh Funeral Home. Friends may call at the Howard residence after 2 p. m. Thursday.

Mr. Howard was a native of Hedgesville, Berkeley County, West Virginia, born June 4, 1861, a son of Lemuel and Anne Elizabeth Davis Howard. He came to Circleville in 1881, and married Mary Ellen Gearhart on April 8, 1885. Mrs. Howard, a daughter, Mrs. Willard Story of Washington C. H.; two granddaughters, Ann and Clara, of Washington C. H., and a brother, Oscar, of Circleville survive.

Two sisters also survive, Mrs. Molly Belle Smith of Chicago and Mrs. Annie Howard Deo of Detroit.

Mr. Howard was a shoe merchant for 49 years in Circleville, retiring in 1927. He was a charter member and served for several years as president of the Circleville Athletic Club, and he directed the Methodist Church choir for eight years.

EDUCATORS STUDY USE OF SCHOOL BUILDINGS FOR REFUGEE CHILDREN

How refugee children might be transported from the east and west coasts of the United States and placed in inland school houses was the subject discussed by O. E. Hill, assistant state director of education, at a meeting of the Mt. Pleasant Brotherhood Tuesday night.

A survey to determine the facilities for such a program is now being considered by the State Department of Education, Mr. Hill said.

War Highlights

BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE
WASHINGTON—The United States moved today to organize the entire Western Hemisphere for defense against Japan and other axis powers. The State Department announced that a meeting of foreign ministers of all the 21 American republics was being called to plan means for mutual defense in accordance with the pledge of reciprocal assistance and cooperation adopted at the meeting of ministers at Havana in July 1940. It will be held in Rio De Janeiro, in January.

LONDON—The war situation has changed “both favorably and adversely” in the last few days, Prime Minister Winston Churchill told the House of Commons today in announcing loss of the British battleship Prince of Wales and the battle cruiser Repulse. The prime minister said he would make a short statement at the next sitting of the House on the general war situation which he said “has from many points of view both favorably and adversely undergone important changes in the last few days.”

TOKYO—Via Official Japanese Wireless—Tokyo officials today denied reports that a Japanese aircraft carrier has been sunk off Hawaii. The suggestion was made that observers might have seen an American vessel, believed to be the United States aircraft carrier Enterprise, sink after being hit by Japanese bombs and mistook it for a Japanese ship.

NEW YORK—Chinese forces on the mainland back of Hong Kong are relieving Japanese pressure on the crown colony by attacking in two directions, the BBC reported today, according to CBS in New York. Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek’s forces are attempting to stem a land attack by the Japanese from the Canton region being carried out in conjunction with sea and air assaults.

NEW YORK—British radio broadcast picked up by NBC reports “heavy damage” on American ships resulted from large-scale Japanese aerial attack. No further details. Place of the attack, extent of the damage, unrevealed by British radio.

BUENOS AIRES—Argentine navy ministry denied today reports Nazi battleship Luetzow sighted off coast while raiding in South Atlantic.

LONDON—Britons stunned by loss of Prince of Wales and Repulse. Speculation arises over possibility Japanese have developed new aerial bomb or torpedo of destructive power hitherto unknown.

SAN FRANCISCO—Bay area of San Francisco and Sacramento, state capital, dimmed by blackouts. Presumed enemy planes off coast had been picked up by detectors.

LOS ANGELES—Radio stations of southern California ordered off air by Federal Communications Commission.

HONOLULU—Thunder of naval guns rolls in from the ocean again today, indicating another contact between United States and Japanese warships.

BERLIN—Unconfirmed reports persist Chancellor Hitler will “clarify” Germany’s stand on the United States-Japanese war today.

Japanese Attack On Important Island Turned Back

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10—The War Department in the first official communique of the war today announced the defeat of a “hostile attack” against the west coast of Luzon in the Philippine islands.

The attack occurred between the cities of San Fernando and Vigan, the War Department said.

The communique also disclosed that bombing attacks on six enemy transports on Vigan resulted in direct hits on three Japanese ships and damage to the remaining three.

NORTH HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 10—A London radio broadcast picked up today by NBC monitors declared: “According to advice from Manila, the American air force has successfully operated against Japanese navy units which are attacking the Philippines. American planes heavily damaged several navy units and scored direct hits on three Japanese transports, sinking at least one.”

TOKYO, Dec. 10—(Via Official Japanese Wireless)—Japanese imperial headquarters today admitted that two Japanese transports have been sunk and two others damaged but insisted that no lives were lost. Thirteen Japanese army planes have failed to return to their bases.

MANILA, Dec. 10—Japanese troops landed “in considerable strength” on Luzon, chief island of the Philippines today—going ashore despite a merciless attack on their transports by American bombing planes which sank one ship and damaged another.

(Editor’s Note: A British radio broadcast picked up by NBC said the American air force successfully operated against Japanese navy units attacking the Philippines, damaging several navy units and scoring hits on three Japanese transports.

Japanese landings were said to have occurred at Aparri at the extreme northern tip of Luzon Island, about 300 miles from Manila, and at Bigam, 75 miles south of Aparri.

The official bulletin said the landings were made from six heavily loaded Japanese transports, which were believed to have come from Formosa under Japanese naval and aerial escort.

GERMAN ATTACK ON SEVASTOPOL PROVES FAILURE

MOSCOW, Dec. 10—The German drive against Sevastopol in the Crimea has failed and 15,000 German troops have been “annihilated,” the Soviet army newspaper Red Star said today.

KUIBYSHEV, Dec. 10—An official Russian high command communique today said fighting continued throughout the night on all fronts.

BERLIN, Dec. 10—Germany’s high command announced today that Russian attacks on the Eastern Front once more were “successfully repulsed” and that the Soviets “suffered serious bloody losses.”

Strong forces of German planes dispersed enemy troop formations and armored cars which were on the point of attacking on the Southern Front, the war communique said, and also effectively bombed Soviet air bases.

Reuters Declares Position May Be Clarified By Chancellor

NEW YORK, Dec. 10—A British radio broadcast heard by NBC said today that Chancellor Hitler is “now back in Berlin to address the Reichstag.”

According to CBS, the Berlin correspondent of the Swiss newspaper Basler Nachrichten said that Hitler was expected to speak “in a day or two.”

BERLIN, Dec. 10—Reports—still not officially confirmed—sweep Berlin today that the Reichstag will meet before nightfall to hear a pronouncement by Chancellor Hitler defining Germany’s official course with regard to the United States-Japanese war.

(Editor’s Note: In Tokyo yesterday the official Japanese spokesman, Tomokazu Hori, said: “We naturally expect Germany to declare war on the United States.”)

Reports that the Reichstag would meet increased amid intense diplomatic activity at the Wilhelmstrasse. They were strengthened by the fact that yesterday’s matinee and tonight’s performances at the Kroll Opera House, where the Reichstag meets, were cancelled.

(Editor’s Note: A Reuters (British) dispatch from Madrid quoted Spanish advices from Berlin saying Hitler was expected to “clarify the Reich’s position toward the United States” in an address before the Reichstag.)

BODY OF BRIGGS YOUTH IS SENT TO NEW HOLLAND

Although the Navy Department has not announced the result of its inquest in the death of Eugene Bryant Briggs, 26, of New Holland, the body has been shipped from Norfolk, Va., and will arrive home in time for funeral services to be Friday at 2 p. m. at the New Holland Methodist Church.

The remains will arrive in Chillicothe at 5:55 a. m. Thursday on the Norfolk and Western railroad, Kirkpatrick and Sons, funeral directors, have been informed.

The body will remain at the funeral home until the hour of services, friends being permitted to call after noon Thursday. Mr. Briggs was a chief petty officer in the United States Navy. His body was found in the Elizabeth River at the Norfolk naval base Saturday night, clanking a 10 day search.

He arrived at the base November 12 after enlisting in the naval reserve as a physical instructor on approval of his application by Lt. Comm. Gene Tunney, head of that branch of the navy.

He dropped from sight 15 days after his arrival, after writing letters to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Briggs, New Holland expressing enthusiasm for his new career. His personal effects, even his money and his billfold, were found among his possessions in his quarters.

Prince of Wales And Repulse Go Down At Malaya

Japanese Jubilant After Confirmation Of Sinkings; London Announces Attacks During Operations In Pacific

BERLIN, Dec. 10—The Japanese naval office announces that the gigantic British battleship King George V has been sunk, the German wireless reported from Tokyo today.

(There was no confirmation of this report.)

LONDON, Dec. 10—An official British spokesman admitted today that the battleship Prince of Wales and battle cruiser Repulse have been sunk.

The spokesman declared the two mighty British naval units were sent to the bottom while carrying out operations “against a Japanese attack on Malaya.”

TOKYO (Via Official Japanese Wireless) Dec. 10—Japanese imperial headquarters today announced destruction of the giant new British battleship Prince of Wales and the battle cruiser Repulse and declared the British Far Eastern fleet has been “obliterated.”

At the same time it was claimed an American submarine was sunk Monday morning off the island of Palawan in the Philippines.

Both huge British ships were sent to the bottom by aerial bombs off the eastern coast of Malaya, the Japanese announcement said.

Disclosure of the sinking caused wild jubilation in Tokyo. All Japanese radio networks broadcast the news. In Tokyo crowds gathered at street corners and snatched extra editions of newspapers.

Allies Offer Praise

The War Ministry announced the German and Italian military attaches in Tokyo had called at the War Ministry to offer their congratulations.

Meanwhile, the navy section of the imperial headquarters announced the navy has lost 38 planes since outbreak of the war with Britain and the United States.

It added, however, that no Japanese warship has been lost.

An official announcement said Emperor Hirohito sent a message of felicitation to the commander-in-chief of the Japanese fleet, Admiral Isoroku Yamamoto, congratulating the admiral on the “outstanding results of the great naval war in the Pacific against Britain and the United States.”

Simultaneously an important cabinet meeting was held at Premier Hideki Tojo’s residence, to decide on “important diplomatic matters.” Authorities said the decision reached will be announced by the government “some time tomorrow.”

An official communique said the military planes sent the two British warships to the bottom off the east coast of the Malayan Peninsula.

The Prince of Wales, launched in 1939 and a veteran of the battle that sank the German battleship Bismarck, was a 35,000-ton dreadnaught with a complement of 1,500 officers and men.

It arrived in the Far East only a few days ago prior to the opening of the Far Eastern conflict.

The battle cruiser Repulse, launched in 1916 as one of the powerful Renown class battle cruisers, was a 32,000-ton fighting ship which carried about 1,205 officers and men.

The special Japanese communique said:

“The British Far Eastern fleet was sighted off the eastern coast of the Malayan Peninsula at 11:30 a. m. Wednesday.

“Japanese aircraft immediately went into action.

“The Repulse was sunk instantly by bomb hits.

“At 12:29 p. m. the Prince of Wales was lit and listed to starboard as a result of direct hits. She attempted to escape but at 12:50 p. m. she received additional hits and was sunk.”

(The Prince of Wales was the warship aboard which President Roosevelt and British Prime Minister Winston Churchill signed and issued their “Atlantic Charter” when they met at sea several months ago.)

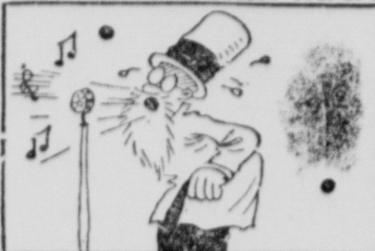

Honolulu Reports:

Explosions that sounded like the fire of heavy naval rifles rolled dimly over Honolulu today from out over the Pacific, leading to speculation that United States sea forces had contacted the Japanese “suicide” squadron that loosed the savage raid on this island Sunday and set off the war.

For the third straight night Honolulu and Pearl Harbor, the great American naval base, were blacked out as continued careful checks were made for casualties of Sunday’s unprovoked bombings. The toll now is more than 1,500 with about half of these fatalities.

ALL PRIVATELY OWNED PLANES DOWNED IN OHIO

Officials Take Control Of 1,340 Ships, 129 Airports

LOYALTY OF IMPORTANCE

Numerous Authorities At Meeting Conducted To Discuss Problem

COLUMBUS, Dec. 10—Flight of privately owned aircraft over Ohio was at a standstill today as state and federal officials moved swiftly to establish an iron control over the state's 1,340 personal planes and 129 airports to block fifth column activity.

Preliminary plans for storage of the planes and their restricted use only by fliers of proven loyalty were mapped at two conferences in Columbus.

Participating in the first gathering were Earl Johnson, wing commander of the Ohio division, civilian air patrol; Hal G. Sours, state highway director; Dr. R. H. Markwith, state health director; Adjt. Gen. Whittier S. Bird, commander of the state guard; and W. W. Jarrell of Cleveland, D. F. Peterson of Cincinnati and R. C. Hutton of Columbus, general inspectors for the Civil Aeronautics Authority.

Protection Mapped Here plans were mapped for complete protection of all vital production points, utilities and lines of communication in the state.

At the second conference, Johnson, the aeronautics inspectors, General Bird and Don C. Power, secretary to the governor, outlined preparations to ground and store all planes.

A complete outline of both phases of civilian air defense was then delivered to Maj. Gen. Daniel Van Voorhis, commander of the fifth corps area at Fort Hayes, Columbus. He was to approve them finally before Johnson takes them to Washington Friday.

There they will be co-ordinated with plans from all the central states by Brig. Gen. John F. Curry, national commander of the civilian air patrol.

All planes are now grounded under war department orders. When finally concentrated at the 62 central fields, they will be under armed guard, night and day. Every private owner's license is suspended for the time being. It will not be reinstated until an application for reinstatement is made to the war department and aeronautics authority. Pilots will thereafter have to prove their citizenship and loyalty but not their ability to fly before they regain use of their planes.

Storage of the planes at 62 airports was arranged so that no personal pilot would be caused too much inconvenience by removing his plane too far from its regular home hangar.

Improper Use Feared Johnson said after the conferences that he was not worried so much about the proper owners of the planes using them, but by the possibility of theft and improper use by enemy or Fifth Column forces from within.

Of the privately owned planes, he is most concerned over those that are kept in fields near owners' homes, rather than at regular airports, no matter how small and poorly equipped those ports are, Johnson added.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Link sausages need not be pricked before cooking. Add two tablespoons of water to the sausage in the frying pan, cover and cook slowly until water evaporates, then brown and the sausage will hold its shape.

Place a leg of lamb for roasting with the skin side down, because the fat deposit is on the inside surface of a leg of lamb.

A dash of cologne sprayed around a room in which cigar and cigarette smoke is thick, will clear the atmosphere readily. Try this at your next party.

Blackout Lasts Nearly Hour In Western Region

By James L. Kilgallen

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 10—Blackouts plunged the San Francisco Bay area and the state capital, Sacramento, 90 miles inland, into total darkness shortly before dawn today as the roar of enemy planes off the California coast presumably had been picked up by delicate army electrical detectors.

The San Francisco blackout lasted 57 minutes, from 2:23 a. m. until the "all clear" signal was given at 3:20 a. m.

Sacramento went dark at the same time but the blackout in that city was lifted two minutes earlier.

ASHVILLE

Said he never did like snakes very well so he turned in and killed the one he found in the woods the other day all coiled up ready to bite him. This is a "true kill" story as told by Fred Snyder living over near the Fairfield-Pickaway line.

Ashville—Sonic of the near "Marcy tribe" Erroll Decker, John White and the venerable Benson S. Custer were here at headquarters yesterday. In "taking count," found that Mr. Custer was 89 years of age on August 22, last, exactly four years younger to the day, than the well known Jerome Peters at St. Paul, 93 years of age last August. School teacher Peters yet has in perfect condition the school register he used at Brobst Hill school, west of Marcy, 69 years ago, and with no interference for awhile, he'll be sighting the names of the best lot of kiddies that ever went to anybody's school. There were 54 of them in the rather small one-room building, with scarcely more than a dozen yet living to tell about it.

Ashville—Miss Lena Parks is here at the home of G. A. Hook and family making a good recovery from a tonsil removal operation. . . . George Jones has returned to his shoe repair shop after taking a few weeks out at a Capital City hospital. . . . Luther Cooper at Berger Hospital from here, is reported "slowly getting better." . . . Up at what is known as the Messick building place, plenty action was on there yesterday, both Paul Geiger and Mrs. Schiff having a force of workers making substantial and much needed improvements.

Ashville—William Sampson Jr., is here on a 15-day furlough at the home of his father, William Sampson, northeast of town. When leaving here it will be for a Texas flying field. He is an airplane schooled mechanic in training since last April.

Ashville—Ed. Ett has sold his dwelling property north of the U. B. Church, to Rev. Arthur Fultz who with his family, wife and three children, will occupy same in the not far distant future. Mr. Ett, after disposing of his household goods, will go to Lancaster making his home there with his son-in-law and daughter, Andrew and Mrs. Bigum.

Ashville—Dewey Donaldson and wife now occupy second-floor rooms in the Hook store building.

A fine Christmas tree, now very soon, will be occupying a desirable place somewhere in central Ashville. Simon Rife, over in Walnut Township, who has supplied these splendid trees for several years in the past, is doing this same thing again. The decorating committee composed of Hoadley Brintlinger, Cecil Scott and William Toole will be at work soon placing the village in its Christmas attire. The business men, too, will be doing their part toward nicely decorating their places of business.

Ashville—The local school board was in session at the school building. No business was transacted except the paying of bills. The school youngsters' holiday vacation will begin at the closing of school Tuesday evening, December 23, and continue until Monday, January 5.

Ashville—Among the local ones starting for military training today are Chester Hedges and Robert Kirkpatrick. . . . Val and Mrs. Prushing were recently guests of Mrs. M. G. Lerch at the County Seat. Joseph Pobst is rebuilding his large workshop on Main Street just east of the N. & W. tracks and with this addition in space can more easily handle a greater amount of work.

Ashville—The Commercial Law classes of AHS has been busy studying case problems and hearing reports made by the students on cases incidental to the various chapters studied thus far. Chapters on which case problems have been discussed are Contracts, Bailments, Partnerships, Corporations, Negotiable Instruments, Insurance. Most of the class members reported upon subjects relating to auto accidents, injuries, hostile fires in dwellings and barns, and the like.

Ashville—Those reporting auto accidents were Elmer Neff, Carl McClurg, Elroy Reid, Geneva Partee, Erna Bowers, Paul Pettibone, Leonard Campbell, Glenn Malone, Harold Myers, Boyd Kuhlwein and Don Duval. Others who gave reports were Wilma Smith, injuries; Dorothy Wellington, fire damages; Eugene Wilson, fire loss, and Bill Cain, traffic problems.

Ashville—Next game of basketball for the fast-paced Broncos is Friday night with St. Mary's of Lancaster furnishing the opposition. Another game and another victory is the predominating thought of those who witnessed the smashing victory over Pickaway last week. All boys came out of the battle in good shape and will be anxious for the referee's opening blast this coming Friday night. It may be said in backing up the prediction that another win will be recorded, that the St. Mary's aggregation thus far has not been very successful in its games, having won but one contest.

Chamber of Commerce Pledges Support in All-Out War Effort

TELEGRAM SENT TO WASHINGTON BY CITY GROUP

4-H Beef Club Boys And Girl Guests Tuesday Evening

WILLIAM MILLS SPEAKS

Eight-Point Program For Organization Outlined By Ohioan

Circleville Chamber of Commerce, Tuesday night, only a day after Congress had declared war on Japan, pledged its support to the United States and to the President.

Wednesday, a telegram carrying this message will be sent to A. W. Hawkes, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce in Washington. It will read:

"Through you and your organization of the United States Chamber of Commerce, we, the Circleville Chamber of Commerce, desire to express to the President of the United States our unswerving loyalty in this time of national crisis."

The pledge to the government was made on the motion of J. H. Lumbach, Montclair Avenue.

Guests of the Chamber of Commerce were five 4-H Beef Club winners who attended the International Livestock Exposition, three of them being sent by members of the Chamber of Commerce. The trip for Miss Lois Defenbaugh, Salt Creek Township, was sponsored by J. W. Eshelman and Son; for Joe Vause, Duvall, by the Ralston-Purina Company and for Donald Hoover, Ashville, by the Circleville Lumber Company.

All three club members told of their experiences at the Exposition. Other club members present were Robert Peters and Busse Hedges, both of Ashville. All were presented to Chamber members by Agricultural Agent F. K. Blair.

Principal speaker at the meeting was William A. Mills, Columbus, director of organization relations of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, who presented an eight-point program which can be utilized by the local chamber in the present emergency as a demonstration of "practical patriotism."

Program Essential

The speaker pointed out that while there may be some change in emphasis in normal Chamber of Commerce programs, they are just as essential, if not more essential, in the nation's war economy than they were previously. These phases of Chamber of Commerce activity relate to agriculture, industry, retail methods and civic procedure.

However, Mr. Mills urged members of the Circleville Chamber to give thought to the job of their organization as it is related to the present crisis.

"The job," he said, "as I see it, is:

"1. Don't jump into any new enterprises and new fields of activity without weighing very carefully whether they represent a needless expenditure of money and energy without making any essential contribution to defense;

"2. Be very careful of schemes that are advanced solely for the personal profit of some individual or group of individuals who desire to capitalize on the popularity of defense activity;

"3. Contact your Mayor and the Chairman of your Civilian Defense Council and if none is organized, see that one is organized and when organized, cooperate with it enthusiastically;

"4. Offer your services as individuals as active participants of the various local defense authorities, and encourage others to volunteer for similar service;

"5. Create an emergency defense committee which will have the right to speak and act for the Chamber of Commerce on matters of community-wide interest when it is not possible to follow the usual organization procedure;

"6. Appoint a committee to study the problems of post-war period;

"7. Make the position of your organization very emphatic on the need for reduction of non-defense expenditures. This was important as we prepared for defense, it is more important now as we prepare for war;

"8. Insist that nothing be done

WPA SUMMONS SHORT CIRCUIT ENGINEERS FOR CAUSES FLAMES THURSDAY MEET IN MOVIE MOTOR

Approximately 40 city and county engineers, representing sponsors of WPA projects in 20 Central Ohio counties, will meet with WPA officials 10:00 a. m., Thursday, December 11, at the Armory Building, Ohio State University.

Purpose of the meeting is to discuss Federal aid WPA programs proposed for the six months period beginning January 1st. Procedures, regulations and policies also will be discussed, Mr. Kelly said.

Henry McCrady, Pickaway County engineer, Circleville, has been invited to attend the meeting.

Mr. Kelly stated that WPA will present to the engineers some new ideas about planning and operations which will be of assistance to the engineers in the development of city and county sponsored WPA programs.

as a war emergency that will needlessly change the social and economic conditions under which you operate, looking forward always to the re-establishment of normal conditions after the war."

In conclusion, Mr. Mills said: "Things don't just happen—organization and teamwork make them happen. This Chamber of Commerce can be a powerful agency for good; it makes things happen in this community."

"A good thing to remember, and a better thing to do, is to work with the construction gang and not the wrecking crew. You can have the kind of a town you want—things don't just happen."

U. S. NAVY NEEDS MEN IN GROUND WORK TRAINING

Aviation Field Open For Recruits, Columbus Area Reports

FOUR STATIONS READY

Numerous Courses Await Volunteers; Radio Jobs Are Open

Announcement was made in Washington, D. C., today that the U. S. Navy will need more men who desire basic training for aviation ground work. To supply this need, schools have been established at four separate Naval air stations to give instruction in the work of aviation metallsmith, aviation machinist's mate, aviation ordnancemen and aviation radioman. Locations of these schools are Jacksonville, Florida; Norfolk, Virginia; Pensacola, Florida; and San Diego, California.

Information from the Columbus Recruiting Station points out that these schools are open to recruits who have the aptitude and qualify for this schooling on the completion of their recruit training period and before their assignment to sea duty. These aviation ground work schools are called Class "A" Schools, Group IV, because they give basic instruction and are the 4th group of trade schools open to recruits, the others being Group I, electrical and ordnance; Group II, communication and clerical; and Group III, machinists, metalworkers and aviation ordnance-men.

Special Instruction

The aviation metallsmith course gives special instruction in the properties of metals, heat-treatment of metals, cutting, forging and in those phases of welding and brazing essential to aviation. Aviation machinist's mate training covers bench, vise and floor work necessary to the machinist and instruction in the use of power tools. U. S. seamen who are interested in this work will also obtain practical experience in the operation, care and repair of aviation engines used in the Navy and will learn to assemble and disassemble such engines as well as learn to install them in planes and check all phases of operation such as carburetion, timing and lubrication.

Aviation ordnancemen training consists of instruction in the use and maintenance of machine-guns and other weapons used in Naval aircraft. This course includes a study of boresighting guns, synchronizing gun fire with propellers in motion, mounting and effective use of guns. The recruit entering this course of instruction also will learn the use of gun cameras, and the rigging and release of high-speed targets for practice.

Aviation radiomen receive general radio training in addition to those phases of radio peculiar to aircraft.

In addition to the technical job training outlined above, there are nearly fifty trade jobs and vocations for which patriotic young men can receive training when they join Uncle Sam's new "Two-Ocean" Navy.

sent to Washington from whence survivors will be informed. He made no mention of the number. Neither has any accurate count been announced as to civilian casualties, although city officials said they were severe. Property damage also is acknowledged to be heavy, although unestimated.

Speedy forces from Pearl Harbor were being put to sea even while death rained from the skies Sunday. It is presumed these have caught up with the Japanese carrier, or carriers, and escorting ships and have engaged them, or they may have intercepted fresh enemy contingents heading for the battered island.

The fate of the islands of Midway, Wake and Guam, American air and naval bases between Honolulu and Manila, had not been cleared up. The Japanese claimed success in occupying the islands, but United States officials in Honolulu would not confirm the claims. All they would say was that enemy reports might be expected to be exaggerated.

Singapore Reports:

SINGAPORE, Dec. 10.—Naval and air reinforcements, including bomber and fighter planes, have arrived in Singapore from the Netherlands East Indies, it was announced officially today.

A new battle broke out north of Kuantan on the Malayan Peninsula today as Japanese forces once more attempted a landing under terrific British bombing.

An official British military communique said the Japanese were being held back in their efforts to land heavy reinforcements on the northern section of the peninsula for a push across Malaya above Singapore.

"The enemy continued its air and land efforts in North Malaya without making much progress," the communique said.

"Early Wednesday the Japanese were reported to have attempted a landing on the Malayan east coast just north of Kuantan, half way between Singapore and the Thailand frontier. They are being engaged."

Kuantan is about 200 miles north of Singapore.

The communique stated that during air attacks on Butterworth airbase in Panang five Japanese planes were shot down.

It added that reconnaissance planes located a "considerable number" of enemy ships off Singora, Kota Bharu and Pattani on the Malay coast.

Heavy fighting was declared to be still raging around the Kota Bharu airbase, just below the Thai border. British imperial forces, including Australian veterans of the Syrian and North African campaigns, were said to have reached the Kota Bharu sector.

An earlier Singapore war bulletin said R.A.F. reconnaissance flights had revealed an additional 25 Japanese transports were moving down the Gulf of Siam along the coast of Thailand, escorted by warships, in an apparent attempt to land still more reinforcements in northern Malaya.

Half-minute dispatches from Hong Kong said Japanese efforts to break across the crown colony's northern frontier were continuing but were being driven back under shattering British fire.

(Hong Kong army headquarters said British imperial troops, including Canadian units with American volunteers in their ranks, "successfully maintained" defense of the Hong Kong frontier.

Raid Warning Sounds In New York For 26 Minutes

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—Presence of "two unidentified planes" in the New York area today prompted a 26-minute air raid warning throughout the city and nearby suburbs.

Lieut. Fitzhugh Querrier at the City Air Control Center said the two planes—their nationality still undetermined—were reported by spotters on Long Island.

Indications were there was a more conscientious observation of the warning signals than obtained yesterday.

Overnight, many office windows had been coated with lampblack and shrouded with curtains.

The alert was not only city-wide but extended out into Long Island. Farmingdale police reported an alert there at 8:51 a. m., 16 minutes after the New York alarm was sounded.

AXIS PRESSURE TO WIN FRENCH FLEET FEARED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—Official Washington today is deeply concerned over the danger of Germany getting control of the French fleet at French African bases.

With the United States now engaged in total war with Japan, it is feared the European axis powers are bringing renewed pressure of the strongest kind to bear on the Vichy government of France for the use of African bases and units of the French fleet.

The reported visit of Admiral Francois Darlan, French premier, to Rome to see Mussolini is considered part of the axis pressure drive on Vichy.

It is believed in Washington that Mussolini intends to demand facilities for the axis in French Tunisia.

Library Notes

New Books Added

The Philadelphia Cook Book by A. W. Reed—Famous dishes and menus from colonial days to the present are brought together in this unusual and valuable collection. Many of the recipes came from old family notebooks. Each chapter contains descriptive and historical notes that give a background for the foods and foods. There is one section on menus for outdoor summer occasions and in-door dining the year-round. One of the best chapters is on the preparation of native wild game as prepared in the fine Pennsylvania manner. Roast grouse with mushroom or chestnut filling, deviled turkey eggs, or venison steak are examples of dishes which can be recommended without hesitation by anyone personally acquainted with the manner of cooking and eating in the Pennsylvania Dutch country.

Pulitzer Prize Poems—compiled by Marjorie Barrows. An anthology of Pulitzer prize poems, 1922-41, which represents some of the best poems that have been written in America for the past twenty years. This is the first collection of Pulitzer winning poetry. In the foreword the Publisher states: "the poems which have been selected are not the highly difficult poems appreciated by the few, but the simple, better-loved poems that a larger American public has already greeted with enthusiasm."

Through Hell and High Water, by the Explorers Club—Exciting adventure in the four corners of the earth by the foremost living explorers, told in their own words. Among the contributors, all members of the Explorers Club, are Roy Chapman Andrews, Julien Bryan, Kenneth Collins, Hassold Davis, J. Allan Dunn, Richard Finnie, Clyde Fisher, Father Hubbard, Don Mac Millan, Gregory Mason, and Lowell Thomas.

The Playleaders Manual by M. E. Mulac—This manual was prepared with the idea of combining in one volume suggestions, projects, and program aids for the playleader in cities or rural areas. Although planned for playground leaders primarily, there is much material to be used by teachers in the schoolroom, gym or on the playground; by camp counselors; 4-H leaders; athletic directors and social recreation leaders. The subjects dealt with include: Organization and administration of playgrounds, first aid, game leadership, various games, contests, and tournaments; folk dances, storytelling, and dramatics; nature study, handicraft, stunts, puzzles, and party programs.

EXECUTIVE SAYS NATION FIGHTING ALL AXIS FOES

Serious Reverses In Early Phases Of Strife With Japanese Admitted

good news, the defeats and the victories — the changing fortunes of war.

"I repeat," he said in chilling tones, "that the United States can accept no result save victory, final and complete. Not only must the shame of Japanese treachery be wiped out, but the sources of international brutality, wherever they exist, must be absolutely and finally broken."

"We expect to eliminate the danger from Japan, but I would serve us ill if we accomplished that and found that the rest of the world was dominated by Hitler and Mussolini."

"Remember always that Germany and Italy, regardless of any formal declaration of war, consider themselves at war with the United States at this moment just as much as they consider themselves at war with Britain and Russia. And Germany puts all the other republics of the Americas into the category of enemies."

Mr. Roosevelt frankly said all plans are being laid on the basis not only of a long war, but a hard one.

"That is the yardstick by which we measure what we shall need and demand," he asserted, "money, materials, doubled and quadrupled production—ever-increasing. The production must be not only for our own Army and Navy and Air forces. It must reinforce the other armies and navies and air forces fighting the Nazis and the war lords of Japan throughout the Americas and the world."

Polities Outlined

To this end, the President announced adoption of two broad policies.

"The first is to speed up all existing production by working on a seven day week basis in every war industry, including the production of essential raw materials," he said.

"The second policy, now being put into form, is to rush additions to the capacity of production by building more new plants, by adding old plants, and by using the many smaller plants for war needs."

This was the $150,000,000,000 "victory program" which Mr. Roosevelt pointed out must be financed through payment of more taxes, purchase of more bonds, the foregoing of extra profits, and harder and longer work.

Although the President did not reveal specific details of naval, land and air losses in the Pacific as many had hoped, he was frank enough in portraying the general picture.

"So far," he said, "the news has been all bad. We have suffered a serious set-back in Hawaii."

"The casualty lists of these first few days will undoubtedly be large. Many American soldiers and sailors have been killed by enemy action. American ships have been sunk, American airplanes have been destroyed."

Mr. Roosevelt gave his solemn promise to the nation it would get detailed news "just as quickly as possible," but said at present he lacked sufficient accurate information "to state the exact damage which has been done to our naval vessels at Pearl Harbor."

"Admittedly the damage is serious," he said. "But no one can say how serious until we know how much of this damage can be repaired and how quickly the necessary repairs can be made."

The chief executive urged the public to reject all rumors, warning that "these ugly little hints of complete disaster fly thick and fast in war-time."

MICKEY ROONEY ADMITS HE'LL SOON TAKE BRIDE

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 10.—Mickey Rooney's going to get married. The youthful holder of screen box office records admitted today that he and Ava Gardner, 18-year-old film player, were indeed very much in love with each other and hoped the wedding would take place soon.

"We've got to confer with Ava's mother and mine about the wedding plans," Mickey said, "but we hope it will be very soon, especially since these are times when no one knows just what is going to happen."

Ordered Blackout, Evacuation

being attempted by the Japanese.)

Manila is located on the southern part of the island. Also at several points on Luzon are vital defense areas.

U. S. Army and Philippine constabulary officials said they were probing reports of a conspiracy in and around Manila to help enemy forces.

False Alarms Heard

These reports, included, they said, alleged false air raid alarms and the marking of targets by lights while alien aircraft were in the process of attacks.

The Philippine capital had two air raid alarms last night, it was said, which were found to be false when checked closely. Two workers were placed under arrest and held for investigation.

An officer of the U. S. Army said flares and other lights were seen near the big Nichols airfield, on the outskirts of Manila, while the field was under a bombing attack and was supposed to be blacked out.

SCIOTO-TWP. SCHOOL NEWS

Grade News

The Scioto first grade pupils are now studying about Indiana and their homes. They have also learned about their habits and ways of living.

In geography class the third grade pupils are studying about some of the first villages on the land. They have divided the class into four committees and have begun to build one of these villages. They are using clay, paper, straw, and sticks for building material. The third grade pupils are also making a circus parade. All the animals, clowns, band wagons, and people are drawn free hand.

The following pupils in the fourth grade have neither been absent nor tardy this year: Nancy Dean, Eugene Ehmann, Paul Goldhardt, Helen Haglund, Jean Mattox, John McComb Roy Matzler, Martha Reed, Charles Shade, Robert Shauck, Richard Shoaf, and Loney Strobel. The pupils have made Health Booklets using the alphabet. In Reading they made booklets of "Where Our Way of Living Came From". In geography they are studying about South America.

Quite a few pupils in the fifth grade are taking music lessons. They are Beulah Fausnaugh, Betty Gochenour, Fred Dountz, and Emajean Sprouse. Fred Dountz and Jimmy Raser play in the school band which was recently organized.

The pupils of the sixth grade regret the loss of one of their pupils—Melva Deffenbaugh who transferred to Darby. This reduces their enrollment to thirty. Those taking instrumental music lessons in the sixth grade are Charlotte Holshue, Barbara Prindle, Betty Linder, Dorothy Reed, Helen Gochenour, Jerry Raser, and Jerry Shipley.

During the last six weeks the seventh grade have gained two new pupils—Dixie Zwayer and Charles Woodrow. Their total enrollment is now thirty-eight. During English period the seventh grade pupils have been studying about business letters and have been writing applications.

Billie Zwayer has enrolled in the eighth grade which now has a total enrollment of thirty-seven. In English the eighth grade pupils are studying the comparison of adjectives and adverbs. In arithmetic they are studying about buying articles on the installment plan.

General News

The Junior Class Play entitled "Mother-in-Law Blues" was well attended December 2. This play was directed by Mrs. Gullik, the class adviser. The Juniors of Scioto wish to thank every one for attending.

Bertha Painter, a sophomore, represented the Methodist Church of Commercial Point and our school in the Prince of Peace Declaration Contest held at Circleville Sunday, December 7.

The December meeting of the P-T-A. will be held Thursday night, December 18, in the school auditorium.

MEN ENROLLED AT SHELBY WIN BOOSTS IN PAY

Average Check Of $43.86 Paid To Soldiers In Louisiana Camp

SPECIALS ARE PROVIDED

Many Receive $10 Bonus For Having Served Over Year

CAMP SHELBY, Miss., Dec. 10 "Gone is the day

"When my pay was so much hay" That take off on "Old Black Joe" might well have been the theme song of the average American enlisted man on payday, December 1. For, no longer does that man-with-a-gun dish out for laundry, postage stamps, haircut, and cigarettes . . . and then have to borrow a dime from his tent-mate for a beer on the second of the month because his $21 was already gone.

The average enlisted man in the 37th Division, a typical outfit with 14,476 soldiers autographed his payroll December 1 and was handed $43.86. A couple of regiments (there are a total of 11 in this division) did extremely well. The 112th Engineers received $50.96 per capita, and the Special Troops were "mucked under by a nickel" getting $50.61. These regiments, because of their specialized work, are both small and well stocked with non-commissioned officers and specialists.

The enlisted men may earn as little as $21 a month as a basic private (if he has not completed his four months of service or if he has been "reduced" as a disciplinary measure) or he may obtain a base pay of $126 each thirty days (if he's a master sergeant, the highest grade a "non-com" can achieve). If he's married and is one of the first three grades of sergeants, he can apply for and be remunerated at a rate of $1.15 a day for "monetary allowance in lieu of quarters," or, as the boys put it, "to keep the better half in fur coats."

Third Getting More

Men who have served over one year since the National Guard Mobilization Act was passed are now cracking a "bonus" of $10 a month, a bonus granted by Congress concurrently with the Draft Extension Act. About one-third of the men in the 37th Division are now drawing this extra "saw-buck."

Soldiers with more than four years service are slated for a 10 percent of base pay increase, and each additional four years adds another 5 percent to a man's monthly pay envelope. Thus, a master sergeant ($126) with a wife ($35.65), having served one year since the Guard Act ($10) and three years sometime prior to the Act ($12.60) is entitled to $184.25. This figure is a far cry from the over publicized army penuriousness.

The $43.86 average per man was computed after the soldier has paid for his army insurance and after subtraction for lost property, damaged property, fines etc. Lieutenant-Colonel Craig Moore, finance officer of the 37th Division, estimates that the average per capita before these deductions would be around $48.

CARPENTER ORDERED TO RANDOLPH FIELD DUTY

Captain Elwood C. Carpenter of Camp Shelby, Miss., has been ordered transferred to Randolph Field. Captain Carpenter, a former Pickaway County educator, lost his wife two weeks ago in an automobile accident near Hattiesburg, Miss.

A Scots ex-servant man joined the Home Guard associated with a Coventry, England, factory and was equipped with a Lee-Enfield rifle. He handled it and said that it seemed as familiar to him as the one he used at Gallipoli. Still musing, he went home and looked up his old army papers. He found the number of his rifle and discovered it was the same as the one issued him.

SALE OF SEALS REACHES HALF WAY MARK HERE

The 33rd annual Christmas Seal sale in Circleville and Pickaway County has reached its half-way mark. Miss Elizabeth Dunlap, executive secretary of the Pickaway County Tuberculosis and Health Association, revealed Wednesday.

Approximately $750 has been received from over 900 persons. Miss Dunlap reported. Eighty percent of the total proceeds of the Christmas Seal sale stay in the county, with fifteen percent of the total going to the state and five percent to national headquarters. Friday has been designated as Health Day in the county schools, and rural school pupils will be asked to sell seals to their parents and friends.

In the last year tuberculosis killed approximately 10,000 more Americans than were killed in action, or died from wounds received in action, during the First World War.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Recently, a magazine photographer accompanied Vorys on one of these Tarzan expeditions. A big spread of pictures was to be used, showing the Congressman in various tree-climbing poses. He is perturbed, however, over one picture the photographer snapped. Vorys fears it may embarrass him if printed after he has cast one of his frequent votes against defense measures.

"Yep, you're right," he says "It shows me out on a limb."

LUCKY HIT

That lucky hit by a British aerial torpedo on the propellers of the ill-fated Nazi battleship, Bismarck, was a shot heard around the world in naval circles. It has started reconsideration of designs that will result in far-reaching changes in naval construction.

Except for the direct hit on the Bismarck's driving gear, which slowed her down and enabled the British fleet to close in, the giant Nazi battlewagon might have escaped to rove the seas and prey on shipping. This fact has sunk home to naval builders and they have become extremely conscious of this Achilles Heel. Orders have gone out to devise protection for ships' propellers.

The answer to the engineering problem involved is not an easy one.

Bulges extending beyond a ship's propellers would offer some protection, but this would be offset by serious reduction in propulsive power and maneuverability. Some other solution has to be found.

One thing is certain: The German's had none up to the time they built the Bismarck.

LEADED ORDER

Next on the pan for grilling by the Senate defense investigating committee will be OPM's Priority Division, long a little business peeve.

Specific target of the tough Senate probes is the priority order banning the use of lead for making tin-foil. Reason given for this ukase was shortage of lead for defense purposes. Committee members are convinced there is more to it than this.

They scent the trail of the powerful Aluminum Corporation of America, long the object of deep suspicion and sizzling condemnation by the committee.

Hardest hit by the lead ban is the Reynolds Metal Co., go-getting competitor of giant Alcoa. Several months ago, as a patriotic move when the aluminum shortage became acute, Reynolds a big foil manufacturer, stopped using aluminum in their product. At considerable cost the company converted its plants to use lead instead.

The anti-lead priority order is a double-barreled blow to Reynolds. It not only puts the company completely out of the tin-foil business, with thousands of workers thrown out of jobs, but it also jeopardizes the firm's booming aluminum business that for the first time is giving Alcoa real competition.

Reynolds went into aluminum production by means of an RFC

Mrs. Lillie Stout, 74, West Water Street, was cut on the face and suffered possible broken ribs Tuesday at 7:25 p. m., when she was struck by the automobile of Gerald Miller, 23, Ashville Route 2.

Mrs. Stout was taken to Berger Hospital in the Albaugh ambulance, and remained under observation at the hospital Wednesday.

Patrolman George Green said the accident happened when Miller going south on Court Street, turned east on High Street, his automobile striking Mrs. Stout as she crossed High Street. Miller told police he did not see Mrs. Stout until it was too late to stop.

loan. As security RFC took a lien on all Reynolds plants.

Thus, while one government agency has a mortgage on Reynolds, another government agency is cutting the ground out from under Reynolds in regard to paying off its government mortgage.

The Senate probes think some strange undercover doings will be brought to light that will crack certain high-placed defense heads. Note—The Senate probe will be a pleasant surprise to Guy Holcomb, scrappy young head of the Justice Department's Little Business Bureau, who has been deluged with complaints at the lead ban and has been trying to get relief for hard-hit little business men.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Bert D'Armand of Hollywood has sent the White House this plan for raising funds for defense: One day a month should be designated "National Postage Day," on which everyone mailing a letter would add one cent postage to every letter. . . . Says the National City Bank of New York, "The critical developments in foreign affairs have had little effect on the business situation. Seemingly the adjustment to war conditions has gone so far that business has become immune to shock."

OVER-BOLD DRIVING

THE death rate for motor traffic in this country is appalling. It is also shameful. In a time of emergency we are wasting our greatest resources, which is American lives.

The National Safety Council reports that during the first ten months of this year our traffic deaths numbered 31,620, an increase of nearly one-sixth over the corresponding period of last year. This rate, if continued, would make a year's total of nearly 38,000 street and highway deaths.

The destruction of that many people in one city or state would be regarded as an overwhelming catastrophe. But we become so used to traffic fatalities that we pay little attention to them except when they strike close to our own homes. And even then we have a fatalistic tendency to accept the slaughter.

Kipling, noting our apparent disregard of human life a generation ago, wrote bitterly of the typical American: "His hands are red with blood; his heart leaps, like a child's, at little things." It is time we learned to be more concerned about the big things.

Most of this slaughter comes from our inveterate tendency to "take chances." It was a wise man who gave these three rules for living: Be bold, be bold, but be not too bold! Boldness is a virtue in an army but a fallacy on the highway.

YOUNG READERS

CHILDREN were invited to the book exhibit of the Child Study Association of New York recently. The young critics ranged in age from eight to 15 years, and came from private and public schools in the metropolis. They gave good account of themselves and their reading tastes in the discussions that followed the talks.

Most of them were agreed that career stories "made everything seem too rosy," which suggests that they would not have cared for the Alger and Henty books of a generation ago. They disliked unhappy endings, too, in which they were like a good many adults.

The youngsters defended their enthusiasm for the so-called comics by saying they were entitled to a little relaxation between a day at school and an evening of

UNIONS PROFIT HEAVILY

WASHINGTON — Recently The Washington Merry-Go-Round revealed that the House Naval Affairs Committee had unearthed sensational evidence about huge profits being made by shipbuilders, aircraft manufacturers and other defense firms. Further details on this will be unfolded when the committee makes public its full report shortly.

Contract profiteering, however, won't be the only bombshell in this report.

The committee also will disclose some startling facts about labor union finances. The committee sent out questionnaires to 162 AFL and CIO international unions. So far 101, or about two-thirds, have replied. A digest of their reports reveals the interesting fact that these unions had more than $73,000,000 salted away in their treasuries as of April 1, 1941.

Acquired through fees, per capita taxes and special assessments, the $73,000,000 represented an increase of about 25 percent over assets on September 1, 1939. The international unions profited to the extent of nearly $20,000,000 from the defense program.

In other words, these unions, like the contractors, did right smart for themselves out of the national emergency.

One of the biggest union beneficiaries of the defense program, the committee report will show, is the United Mine Workers, bossed by John L. Lewis.

The questionnaire received back from him disclosed that the UMW had a fat treasury balance in April of $4,014,075.80. Since then, there has been at least one special assessment, reported to have yielded another $1,000,000.

Note—Representative Carl Vinson of Georgia, committee chairman, is quietly planning to follow up his report with a bill to tax international unions the same as corporations. The Internal Revenue law now specifically exempts labor organizations. Under Vinson's bill international unions would be taxed but local unions would continue to be exempted.

homework. "Parents do light reading when they want to relax," said one boy.

A 12-year-old said he loved sea stories and had read "practically all of them." Another said he liked mystery stories but they had to be good ones, "not just bang-bang stuff without a decent thread of a story in it."

Kids' tastes, apparently, are as varied as other people's. Such an event as this critical session shows that they read more than their school texts and comics.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

BY MAKING the United States Latin-American conscious the war promises to prove a very profitable affair for our southern New World neighbors. Yankee big money is beginning to learn that they have tremendous resources to develop and shows signs of an urge to put up the necessary capital for the purpose. Naturally the inflow of a few billions in fresh outside cash into a somewhat primitive country is economically stimulating to the recipient people.

Accounts of Dutch Guiana's wealth-producing possibilities, following the dispatch of a Yankee protective force thitherward, illustratively has been first rate advertising, not only for the Netherlands possession itself, but for the whole area in its vicinity.

It's doubtful that more than about one North American in 100 ever had heard, previously, of the port of Paramaribo, or knew anything of its bauxite deposits' nearby by riches or the potential but hitherto unappreciated productivity of the surrounding jungle.

Today Paramaribo pictures are appearing in all our newspapers, the National Geographical Society's bulletins are describing the whole region in detail, and we're becoming fairly well informed on the subject.

Adjoining Brazil is getting its share of publicity, partly because it's so close to Guiana that it can't but get a percentage of notice and partly because it's co-operating with Uncle Sam in Guiana-esque protective activities against the chances of Nazi mischief-making in the Dutch colony.

RUBBER AVAILABLE

Not far from Paramaribo, along the South American east coastal bulge into the Atlantic, are the mouths of the Amazon, and up the Amazon are wild rubber trees galore. They doubtless need domesticating for gum-tapping purposes, but, considering our worry concerning supplies for our tires and other manufacturing, it would seem as if it should be a job worth undertaking. Henry Ford started it about 25 years ago, but the experiment petered out, due to lack of shipping to bring the goo down the river.

So inland water transportation's an item not to be overlooked in a South American development program.

As for rubber, the trees grow all over western Brazil and down the eastward slopes of Colombia, Ecuador and Peru. Hence that's a quartet of republics that stand to get plenty of Yankee financial attention as the rubber-raising campaign gains headway.

Bolivia and Chile are rich in minerals. Not that they haven't mines already but they can stand more intensive digging into 'em.

Oil deposits are scattered all over—in Venezuela and Colombia, up and down the Andes, in eastern Patagonia and in the Chaco, which Argentina claims part of, and which Paraguay and Bolivia fought over recently.

One of the beauties of the situation is that we're so much friendlier with the Latin Americans than we used to be. Dutch Guiana isn't the first place we've occupied, to the Rio Grande's southward, with marines generally, weren't kindly and protective. Instead, they usually were to enforce collection of money or to squelch anti-Yankee tendencies. They were resented like sixty and resulted in bad relationships.

Now it appears that our mission is to spend money in our neighbors' countries rather than to collect some from 'em, forcibly.

CO-OPERATION NOW

Accordingly, when we move into Guiana, we find Brazil outright helping us, the rest of the Latins are acquiescent and even the Dutch are appreciative of our protection of 'em, against Herr Hitler's agents' anticipated dirty work.

How it'll pan out in the end is a problem to guess on.

As we horn in on Latin American resources' development, if our capital shows an inclination simply to exploit 'em for our own exclusive benefit, giving them none of the gravy, they're pretty sure to get sore over it, just as our Yankee hot polloi did, in the days when we were doing our own developing, here in the then comparatively uncivilized United States.

But maybe we'll be slicker than that time.

President Roosevelt, Vice President Wallace, Secretary Hull and Pan-American Co-ordinator Rockefeller clearly can be depended on to keep up Good Neighborliness while they're at it. We've had administrations, though, that weren't so tactful, and what the future has in store is a matter of speculation.

Red Cross Help Store Up Blood Banks

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Among the other numerous defense plans, some arrangement has to be made for blood transfusions so that all materials will be ready, available and no time will be wasted in the face of an emergency. In order to do this, a system of what is known as blood banks is being used. These blood banks are being collected largely through the work of the Red Cross. A blood bank is not whole blood, but blood serum that has been collected under sterile conditions and is preserved in a tight, sterile flask ready for use. It has been found in practical work that whole blood is not always necessary where a transfusion is required, but that blood serum alone is quite as satisfactory in cases of shock.

Dr. Clendenning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

The blood banks prepared in this way keep in good condition for several months and perhaps longer.

Prisoners Give Blood

In a number of prisons, prisoners have volunteered to give blood for these blood banks and are doing it in a spirit of cheerful and whole-hearted loyalty.

I have had a letter from one of the men who is supervising the collecting of blood from his fellow prisoners. He tells me, by the way, that he needs a centrifuge (he is a trained laboratory technician). I feel that people should support this work in the penitentiaries by helping them out with apparatus wherever needed.

Invaluable time will be saved in giving blood transfusions to soldiers of the United States Army because each man's identification tag will now be stamped to indicate his blood group determined by army surgeons in advance. A new testing technique will be used by army surgeons to classify blood into one of the four known groups quickly, safely and cheaply.

No matter whether blood transfusions use whole blood or serum, they can be given safely only after tests have shown that the blood of the recipient will mix safely with that of the donor. Only human blood can be used. All human blood falls into four recognized classes. If blood of the wrong type should be given the patient, clumping of the donor's cells would occur in the body of the patient causing a shock reaction, and possibly death.

Saves Valuable Time

The necessary tests to determine these groups, made by the old method, were too time-consuming when minutes might mean the difference between life and death for the patient.

The blood banks, each of which is properly designated showing to which blood group it belongs, are a very necessary part of emergency stores if the present conflict should develop into a serious shooting war.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

M. M. M.: "Is there any possible danger of contracting tuberculosis from old letters, books and papers owned by someone who died with tuberculosis some years ago?"

Answer: The possibility is very remote. The transmission of tuberculosis, according to our modern ideas, is entirely by human contact. While it is possible that the tubercle bacilli may live on papers of that kind, the chances of infection by this means are negligible.

Mr. L. W. M.: "I would very much like to know your opinion of South American mate as a drink for middle-aged people."

Answer: Mate is an excellent drink for middle-aged people. Those who like it find that it is somewhat more stimulating than tea or coffee and so far as I know, it does not do any more harm than they do—which is practically none.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendenning has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE

PROBABLY never before in their lives had Irene Carter and Roy Leonard felt less like attending a dinner than they did that evening. And yet there they were at Mrs. Daniel Van Vert Jones' dinner in honor of Susan Farmer; there they were trying to appear gay and carefree, fooling some of the people some of the time, but themselves not at all.

They chatted, laughed somewhat hollowly, and made complimentary remarks about the food. But most of what they ate was like ashes in their mouths.

Mrs. Jones, who was never happier than when playing hostess, was in her glory. She beamed on everyone, even on Mr. Jones, who now and then forgot and called Susan "my dear." She wasn't going to let anything spoil her dinner, not even her husband's weakness. She would speak to him afterwards.

Even the twins, Rose and Lily, received their share of Mrs. Jones' beaming. They had behaved themselves remarkably well, which, Mrs. Jones decided, was because they were such gluttons for food. Therefore, being busily occupied with a decidedly tasteful and attractively served meal, they had no time for wisecracks and shocking expressions.

Mrs. Jones turned to Susan, who sat at her right.

"I simply can't get over that gown you're wearing," she said. "It's just too darling. Did you really make it out of your Grandmother Farmer's wedding gown?"

"Yes," said Susan. "I had to have something for evening wear. And so Grandmother Farmer's wedding gown was called into duty." She fingered a bit of trimming at her throat. "She wore it years and years ago, in the Ardenale Methodist Episcopal Church South. That was before we had a pipe organ and the new roof."

Mr. Jones smiled. "Make a note of that, Irene," he said. "We may want Susan to tell that in one of her interviews."

"Yes, sir," said Irene, and turned to the notebook at her elbow.

"Competent, aren't you?" said Roy to her, so that no one else could hear.

"Shut up," said Irene in the same manner. "I've got things to say to you later."

"I can hardly wait."

Irene wrote furiously, and Susan went on talking.

"I just wish you-all could see our little church," she said. "Tucked away among a lot of oaks, so peaceful and quiet and adorable—" She tried to make herself blush. "I have always told myself that I'd be married there also."

"To the sweetheart you left behind you, I suppose," said Irene. "Yes," said Susan. Then, sadly: "That is, if he ever forgives me."

"Forgive you for what, my dear?" said Mr. Jones.

"For making myself conspicuous," said Susan.

Irene, who was sitting beside Roy, whispered: "He should have seen her this afternoon."

"Shhhhh," said Roy.

"What are you two talking about?" Mr. Jones demanded.

"Business," said Irene.

"Well, forget business for the moment, and listen to Miss Farmer—"

"Yes, sir," said Irene.

"Down home," Susan said, "our menfolk still have old-fashioned ideas about the girls they marry. They still think the home is the woman's place, and don't like them to get out and—and—display themselves before the public."

"I think that's just too adorable of them," said Irene.

Rose Meyer swallowed a mouthful of tasty food and said: "But up here it's different. Lots of men are even willing for their women to support them."

"Sure," said Lily. "I know a man right now who's dying to marry me when I grow up, because he thinks I'll inherit the Dainty Diana Dairies, and be able to support him in—"

"In the style," said Rose, "to which he's a darned long way from being accustomed."

"Girls, girls!" said Mrs. Meyer. Mrs. Jones groaned way down inside of herself—and prayed the twins would lapse into silence and eating from now on.

Chewing, chattering. . . . Chattering, chewing.

And then in came the piece de resistance, a huge frozen custard in the shape of one of the Dainty Diana Dairies cows.

"Ah!" said this one.

"Oh!" said that one.

Compliments. . . . Eagerly waiting mouths.

"I thought," said Mrs. Jones, "that we ought to have something to give the dinner a sort of atmosphere."

"Wonderful!" said this one.

"Marvelous!" said that one.

"I hope," said Rose to Lily, "it's not got a lot of chocolate in it."

"Why?" said Lily to Rose.

"Because chocolate always makes me bilious," Rose replied.

"That's a shame to have to cut her up," said Susan. "She's such a darling, darling animal. If Esmeralda hadn't been ill last winter, and lost a lot of weight, she'd look just like that adorable custard."

Everyone laughed but Irene. She again spoke to Roy in an undertone.

"I wonder just how long she can keep it up without breaking," she said.

"Keep what up?" Roy asked.

"That act she's putting on."

"If you had one-tenth the intuition you women are supposed to have," said Roy, "you'd know she isn't putting on an act."

"Says you," was Irene's slangy and unpleasant retort.

Presently the custard cow was reduced to a shambles, and Mrs. Jones announced that coffee and liqueurs would be served in the drawing room.

Everyone moved out of the long, beautifully appointed dining room, down a hall hung with portraits. Roy fell into step with Susan.

"It was a nice dinner, wasn't it?" he said.

"Yes," said Susan. "Only I've been pretty unhappy."

"What about?"

"About this afternoon. I could see Irene Carter simply loathing me."

"Forget it," said Roy. "After all, you were irresistible, and—and—I kissed you. So what?"

"Then you didn't really mean it?" said Susan. "How nice."

"What I mean is—"

"Never mind," said Susan. "I was just a passing fancy, in a way, since you're going to marry Miss Carter. As I told you, I'm not the sort of girl to interfere with another girl's happiness."

"But, Susan, wait. Don't you understand? What I mean is—"

"Excuse me," said Susan. "Here comes Mr. Jones. He's going to explain some of the portraits to me—especially the terribly, terribly modern ones."

"But, Susan—"

Luther League Elects Officers For New Year

Ned Dresbach To Lead Unit; Good Program Given

Election of officers for 1942 was held at the December session of the Luther League, Tuesday, in the parish house of Trinity Lutheran Church, Ned Dresbach being chosen to lead the organization for the coming year. Don Wolf was elected vice president; Theodore Koch, treasurer; Mrs. Gladstone Troutman, recording secretary; Miss Sara Jane Cook, reporting secretary; Mrs. John Kellstadt, pianist, and Gladstone Troutman, chorister. John Kellstadt was in the chair for the business session approximately 45 members being present.

The group planned to join the Von Bora Society and other organizations of the church in sending Christmas gifts to the boys from the church in service. Gifts to be sent are small pocket testaments and prayer books. Mrs. Gladstone Troutman and Miss Edna Mae Henn volunteered to make covers for the flags in the church. Miss Margaret Adkins, secretary, submitted her November report.

Miss Virginia Palm, delegate to the State Convention at Clyde, gave an interesting report. The topic of the convention was "Youth of the Church, March On." Theodore Koch was another member at the convention and Ned Dresbach was a candidate for the presidency of the Ohio District.

Musical entertainment under the leadership of Mrs. George L. Troutman included a vocal duet, "There's a Song in the Air," by David Walters and Walter Melvin; two piano solos, "Ginger Belle" and "Silent Night," Miss Ruth Esther Blum, Miss Vera Zaenglein, violinist, concluding the first part of the program with "Angels' Serenade."

President Kellstadt appointed the committee to decorate the church for Christmas, the members being Ned Dresbach, chairman, Mr. and Mrs. William Barthelme, the Misses Barbara Carey, Miriam Brown, Norma Brown, Betty Barnes, Mrs. George L. Troutman Carl Tracy and Richard Binkley.

A sextet comprised of the Misses Carolyn Herrmann, Barbara Caskey, Eleanor Thomas, Marvina Hennas, Virginia Palm and Mary Virginia Crites sang "The Cradle Song" by Fritz Kreisler.

The origin of Martin Luther's "Cradle Hymn" was presented by Gladstone Troutman. Mrs. Gilbert Edgington and daughter, Jean Louise, with the Rev. Mr. Troutman serving as narrator.

President and Mrs. Kellstadt were in charge of the distribution of gifts and the refreshments which concluded the meeting.

New members signing the constitution were the Misses Ruth Melvin, Jean Trimmer, Rosemary Conkel, Mrs. Marguerite Barthelme and Walter Melvin.

Otterbein Guild

The December session of the Otterbein Guild was held Tuesday in the community house, a short business session in charge of Mrs. J. R. Kirkpatrick being followed by prayer by Miss Lucille Kirkwood.

Miss Kirkwood read the call to worship, the program being opened with a reading, "A Happy Christmas," by Miss Margaret Down; scripture readings, the Misses Mary Ellen Kirkpatrick, Isabelle Noggle and Ruth Gard; prayer period; reading, "Christmas Home Samaritan," Mrs. Kirkpatrick.

Miss Ruth Noggle and Miss Lillian Thompson served refreshments at the close of the meeting.

Loyal Daughters' Class

Mrs. Porter Martin of Circleville, Route 3, delightfully entertained the Loyal Daughters' Class of the United Brethren Church, Tuesday, with Mrs. John Kerns, Mrs. Clarence Valentine and Mrs. George Mast as assisting hostesses. Forty-five members and visitors gathered for the occasion.

The devotionals in charge of Mrs. Elmer Stebbelton included Christmas carols and readings in keeping with the season by Mrs. Martin, Mrs. Russell Jones and Mrs. A. N. Gruesser.

The scripture lesson taken from Luke 2:1-14 and Psalms 19:1-4 was read by Mrs. Stebbelton. Piano solos by Dolores Hawkes and Engagement Announced

Announcement has been made of the engagement and coming marriage of Miss Mildred May Beougher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd F. Beougher of near Amanda, to Mr. Robert Henry Lutz, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lutz of near Lancaster. The wedding will be an event of late December.

Miss Beougher, a graduate of Stoutsville High School, is an employee of the Anchor Hocking Glass Corporation of Lancaster. Mr. Lutz attended Bliss College after graduating from Lancaster

High School and is employed in the home office of the Farm Bureau Mutual Insurance Co., Columbus.

Christmas Decorations

A class in Christmas Decorations is being planned for children by the Columbus Garden Center, 50 East Broad Street, Columbus.

Planned originally for a class of Campfire Bluebirds, the children's class will be conducted Saturday, December 13, at 10 a. m. at the Garden Center by Miss Adelaide Burdge, 214 Fallis Road, who is chairman of the committee for Junior work.

Miss Burdge, who will be assisted by Mrs. Edna Goen, Miss Maude Steelman and Mrs. Chester Bishop, is extending an invitation to all children to attend this class for which there is no admission charge.

Monday Club

Mrs. Robert T. Kelsey will have a paper on "A Colonial Christmas" and Mrs. Tom A. Benick and the Music Division will present the "Nutcracker of Nuremberg" at the meeting of The Monday Club in the Library Trustees' room, Memorial Hall, Monday at 7:30 p. m. Miss Pearl Marshall is chairman of the music division.

This will be an open meeting and members are permitted to take guests.

Circleville Benevolent Association

Plans for the annual Christmas dinner project of the Circleville Benevolent Association were discussed at the December meeting of the organization, Tuesday, in the city cottage. Miss Florence Dunton conducted the meeting and received the reports of Mrs. W. W. Robinson, secretary, and Miss Clara Southard, case worker.

It was reported that many organizations of the community had contributed various sums of money for the Christmas baskets and that several had asked for lists of families to provide with baskets of donated food. Baskets will be distributed December 24.

Miss Southard interested the association with the minutes of the annual meeting of 1941, when the organization was responsible for a part of the salary of the health nurse and was giving assistance to many now on the city and county relief rolls. The funds of the society were better supplied at that time, according to the report.

Miss Southard's report for November showed that 85 families had been helped in some way. With the help of another organization, the Benevolent Association was enabled to secure glasses for one child and shoes for three others. Milk was supplied daily to 21 families.

Circle 4

Circle 4 of the W.S.C.S. of the Methodist Church held its Christmas party Tuesday at the home of Mrs. T. W. Schindler of North Court Street with Mrs. Muri F. Thornton and Mrs. Clyde Cook serving as assisting hostesses.

Mrs. Neil Peterson, Mrs. G. H. Adkins and Mrs. George Hammel were guests for the evening.

A program of Christmas carols and readings was enjoyed. Gifts from a grab bag were exchanged by members.

Refreshments appropriate to the holiday season were served during the social period.

David Dunlaps Are Hosts At Colorful Pre-Holiday Party

Christmas greens and the light of many red candles made a colorful pre-holiday setting for the dinner party Tuesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David S. Dunlap, West Franklin Street, when they were hosts to members of the Sew and So Club, their husbands and a few additional guests.

A three-course turkey dinner was served at 6:30 p. m. from an attractive buffet table in the dining room, the guests being seated at small tables for the dinner hour.

An exchange of Christmas gifts was a pleasant feature of the informal affair. Games were enjoyed following the dinner.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Barnhill, Mr. and Mrs. George Goodchild, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Lutz, the Rev. and Mrs. Neil Peterson, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Nicholas, Mr. and Mrs. George Steele, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. This Christmas Build Your KITCHEN LINE OF DEFENSE

TAPPAN Gas Range

SERVEL ELECTROLUX GAS REFRIGERATOR

Two things are important to American families in our national defense program — health and savings. Most essential sustainer of health is the food you eat — the food prepared in your kitchen. Modern gas equipment brings you cooking advantages that enable you to retain maximum nutritive value of food. Such Tappan features as VITAMIN SAVER BURNERS, LOW TEMPERATURE OVEN BURNERS, SPEED BROILERS and many others, combine to make your food servings more nutritious as well as more delicious. These advantages save time and fuel for you, too — and bring about important economies in your kitchen budget.

10-Year Guaranteed Refrigeration

Dependable food protection is more important today than ever. A silent Servel gas refrigerator will protect your food at lowest cost operation. There are no moving parts in its freezing system to wear. Every 1942 Servel Electrolux gas refrigerator is backed by our 10-year unconditional guarantee on the complete refrigerating system. Yes, you can build a strong kitchen line of defense for years to come by installing a Tappan range and Servel refrigerator this Christmas. See the new models now on display.

Woods, Moon Slowed By Pair Of Ouchy Ankles

Possibility that Circleville High Tigers will go to London Friday evening with two of the first string cagers out of condition was seen today after Bob Moon, guard, twisted his left ankle during Tuesday evening's practice. Captain Johnny Woods was unable to scrimmage

New Redleg

Tuesday because of an ouchy ankle. He was hurt in the Greenfield game last week, but it is likely he will be able to see some service. Whether Moon will be ready for action is a question.

Bob Kline was performing at Woods' forward Tuesday, while no one has been assigned to the other guard.

The Tigers go to London Friday and to Grove City Saturday, playing another out-of-town game next Tuesday at Upper Arlington, then returning home the following Friday to meet Hillsboro in a South Central League game.

DETROIT'S STAR PLANS TO RETURN TO ARMED DUTY

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 10—

Big Hank Greenberg, former Detroit slugger recently released from military service, today prepared to forsake baseball as a career and re-enlist in the U. S. Army for the duration of the war.

"I'm going back in," Hank told friends in Philadelphia. "We are in trouble and there's only one thing to do, return to the service." Greenberg was drafted last May 7 and released as an over-28 selectee a few days ago with the rank of sergeant.

Greenberg stressed that he has not been called back to service, but is returning of "my own accord." As for his baseball job, and the reported $50,000-a-year salary, Hank remarked: "Baseball is out of the window as far as I'm concerned. I don't know if I'll ever play again."

"It isn't anything particularly creditable to me," continued the former first-sacker and outfielder. "That's what we are all going to do, isn't it? There are a million or so men in the service ready to defend the country. It's our job."

REDLEGS SEND BILLY WERBER TO GIANT CLUB

CHICAGO, Dec. 10—Major League player transactions in brief:

New York Giants: Bought Third Baseman Billy Werber from Cincinnati; sold Outfielders Morris Aronovich and Joe Moore to Indianapolis, all in straight cash transactions.

Philadelphia Phillies: Sold Outfielder Johnny Rizzo to Brooklyn; sold Second Baseman Emmett Mueller to Montreal.

Pittsburgh Pirates: Signed Manager Frankie Frisch to another one-year contract.

Chicago White Sox: Traded Outfielder Mike Kreevich and Pitcher Jack Hallett to Philadelphia Athletics for Outfielder Wally Moses. Released Coach Monty Stratton to appoint him manager of Lubbock, Tex., club.

Boston Red Sox: Issued outright release to Pitcher Lefty Grove.

CREE WILL LEAD FAST SQUAD TO ATHLETIC CLUB

One of the Columbus' best basketball teams, paced by Ronnie Cree, stormy petrel of capital city cagers, comes here Thursday evening to do battle with the Circleville Athletic Club crew. The team is the Gossnell Funeral Home crew, winner of several games so far this year and capable of turning in some brilliant basketball.

The preliminary starting at 8 o'clock will be between the Blue Ribbon Dairy and Canal Winchester, several Pickaway County lads being on the visiting team.

C.A.C. cagers who have shown power in their first two efforts are hoping to add a third to their string.

NEW HOLLAND QUINTET BEATEN BY FRANKFORT

New Holland's cagers dropped a hard-fought 41-35 contest Tuesday evening to Frankfort, the game being played on the Bulldog court. Forty-one personal fouls were called, each team losing starting line-men youths via the thumb.

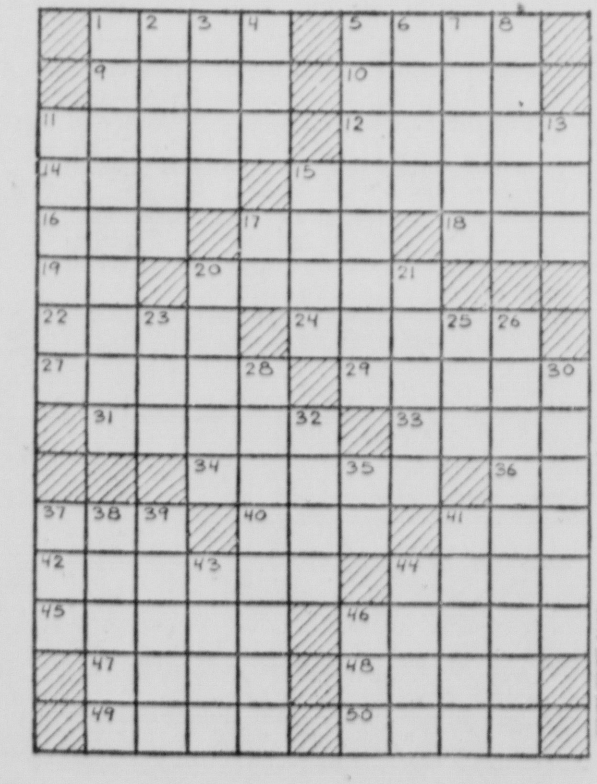

Dennis was New Holland's best, getting 12 points, 11 in the first half. New Holland led at half-time, but couldn't keep its margin. The Frankfort reserves won, 17-11.

10 BOYS LEAVE FOR HAYES; 22 ON 'QUICK' LIST

Ermil Stonerock Leader Of Contingent Starting Training Trip

MANY FIGURES QUOTED

Pickaway County Board's Total Registration Fixed At 2,953

Ten men, making up Pickaway County's thirty-second contingent, were sent to Fort Hayes, Wednesday, to be inducted into military service, leaving 22 men on the local board's quick call list.

Leader of the group which left Circleville was Ermil Stonerock, Circleville Route 2.

Total number of registrants inducted through the local board now totals 204, according to an accumulative progress report, released by Selective Service officials.

The local board's total registration is 2,953, six of whom are reported deceased since registration. Most registrants have been placed in Class 3-A, being deferred because of dependency. Other figures from the report follow:

Number of objectors to combatant service awaiting induction, 1; number of registrants awaiting limited military service, 105; number of registrants in class 1-C, for whom home address reports have been received, 17; number of enlisted registrants for whom only notification of enlistment is received, 17; number of registrants in class 1 pending physical examination, 153; number of registrants in Class 1 and over 28 years old on or before July 1, 1941, 218; number of registrants who have received occupational deferment, 25; number of registrants deferred because essential to National Defense, 11 number of registrants who have completed military service, 11; number of registrants who are public officials deferred by law, 1; number of ministers receiving deferment, 15; number of 4-F men who are mentally, physically or morally disqualified, 91; number deferred because of obvious disability, 20; number of registrants who reported at the induction station, 257; number accepted at the induction station, 204; number rejected at the induction station, 53.

Ohio Pheasants

Now that the pheasant hunting season for 1941 has passed let us discuss John Pheasant for a short time and find out where he used to live and what kind of a habitat he likes. The pheasant we know and hunt today is really an American bird. Early species introduced into this country came from England and were known as the English ringneck. This bird was the result of the inbreeding of many types of pheasant (and there are said to be about 20 pure species) in England.

The English pheasant with its mixed lineage adapted itself to the American climate and proved both its wariness and hardiness by increasing in encouraging numbers.

Some of the western states had imported pheasants from the Orient, several varieties including the Mongolian, Japanese and Chinese birds. These birds of the Far East did fairly well in our western states.

Some of the English ringneck stock were removed and released in the western states and they mixed readily with the Oriental birds and thus the American ringneck today is not unlike many other things American—a hardy stock derived from the finest bloods of pheasantry and a bird that "can take it."

The so-called black pheasant, or melanistic mutant, is a product of the state game farms and is simply a black variety of the ringneck.

The pheasant has been a lifesaver for Ohio hunters, especially since the quail has been put on the song bird list. He is easily propagated either in confinement or out on his own. The cooperative efforts of farmers, sportsmen, and school groups with the Ohio Division of Conservation have been largely responsible for the success of the pheasant in Ohio. This cooperation is necessary too for perhaps no other state has more pressure on pheasant population during the hunting season than Ohio.

John Florence, superintendent of the Washington Township Schools, reports that he shot a ruffed grouse in eastern Pickaway County during the hunting season.

New Animal Booklet

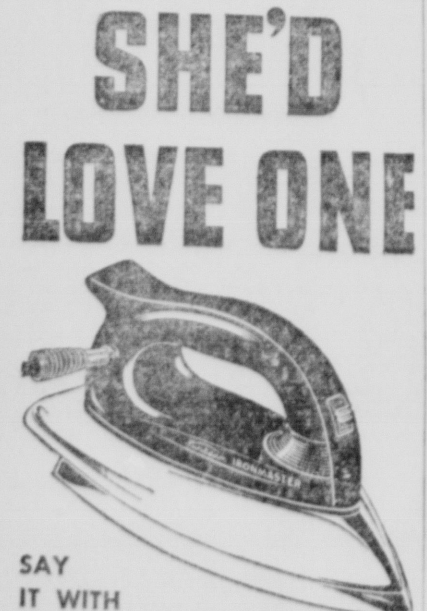

A free copy of "A Key to Mammals of Ohio," by David T. Katz, may be secured by writing to the Ohio Wildlife Research Station, Ohio State University, Columbus.

This 34-page booklet should be of interest to all persons who care to know more about the mammals of Ohio. The key is illustrated to make it more usable and it contains a glossary of the more technical terms used.

There is a list of the mammals occurring in Ohio with their status and distribution in the state and the habitat in which they are most frequently found.

BRITISH LOSE TWO MIGHTY NAVAL UNITS

President Calls on All to Aid in War Effort

EXECUTIVE SAYS NATION FIGHTING ALL AXIS FOES

Serious Reverses In Early Phases Of Strife With Japanese Admitted

EXTENT NOT CERTAIN

Attack Like That On Isle Area May Be Repeated In Other Regions

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10—President Roosevelt today had rallied behind him every man, woman and child in the United States for a long, hard war not only against Japan but Germany and Italy as well—a war in which no result can be accepted “save victory, final and complete.”

The chief executive officially recognized both Hitler and Mussolini as undeclared enemies after taking every possible step to hamstring their agents and nationals in American territory. Meanwhile, official Washington awaited Hitler’s appearance before the Nazi Reichstag today for an anticipated war declaration against the United States in line with the axis joint war plan.

The country knew from the President’s own lips that the first three days of the Pacific war had resulted in serious reverses to U. S. naval, land and air forces, and had heard a solemn warning that neither the Pacific nor Atlantic coastlines are safe from attack.

The commander-in-chief rejected as a “fantastic claim” the Japanese contention that the first single action against Hawaii had gained Tokyo naval supremacy in the Pacific, adding however:

“We must be set to face a long war against crafty and powerful bandits. The attack at Pearl Harbor can be repeated at any one of many points in both oceans and along both coastlines and against all the rest of the hemisphere.”

Even while the President was broadcasting to the four corners of the earth last night, Japanese troops were attempting to occupy Luzon, principal island in the Philippine group, and the chief executive himself conceded that Guam, Wake and Midway Islands probably had been lost.

All Are Partners

But he pointed out that “every single man, woman and child is a partner in the most tremendous undertaking of our American history,” adding that “we must share together the bad news and the

There was no indication as to what action, if any, might be taken with regard to the correspondents between now and the time they are able to leave the country.

C. K. HOWARD, 80, DIES AS RESULT OF FALL IN HOME

Charles K. Howard, 80, a retired shoe merchant who had been active in Circleville affairs for many years, died Wednesday at 1 a. m. in Berger Hospital. Mr. Howard was taken to the hospital just a week ago following a fall down a flight of stairs at his home, 143 East Main Street. He had been in failing health for several years.

The funeral will be Friday at 2:30 p. m. at the residence, the Rev. L. C. Sherburne officiating. Burial will be in Forest Cemetery by the Deffenbaugh Funeral Home. Friends may call at the Howard residence after 2 p. m. Thursday.

Mr. Howard was a native of Hedgesville, Berkeley County, West Virginia, born June 4, 1861, a son of Lemuel and Anne Elizabeth Davis Howard. He came to Circleville in 1881, and married Mary Ellen Gearhart on April 8, 1885. Mrs. Howard, a daughter, Mrs. Willard Story of Washington, C. H.; two granddaughters, Ann and Clara, of Washington, C. H., and a brother, Oscar, of Circleville survive.

Two sisters also survive, Mrs. Molly Belle Smith of Chicago and Mrs. Annie Howard Deo of Detroit. Mr. Howard was a shoe merchant for 49 years in Circleville, retiring in 1927. He was a charter member and served for several years as president of the Circleville Athletic Club, and he directed the Methodist Church choir for eight years.

EDUCATORS STUDY USE OF SCHOOL BUILDINGS FOR REFUGEE CHILDREN

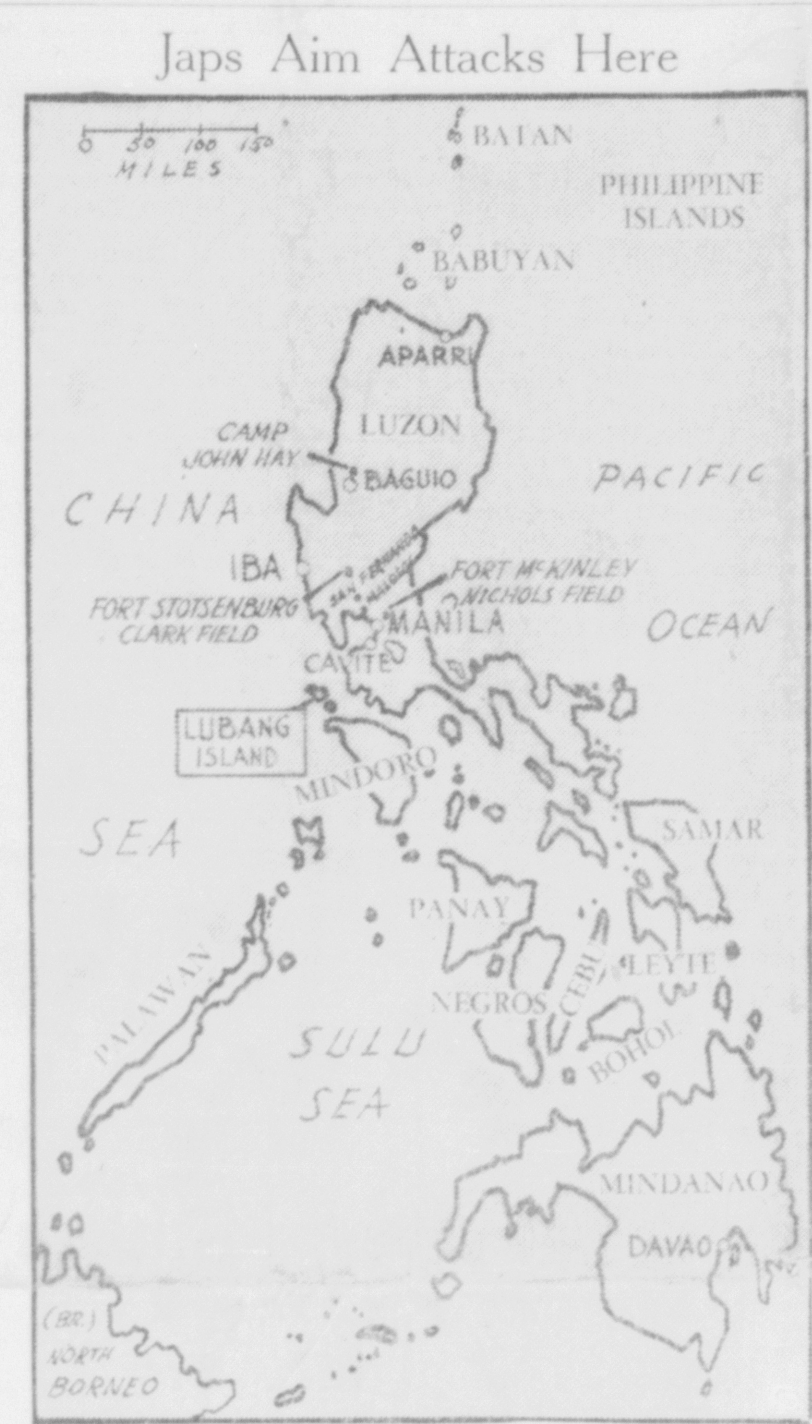

How refugee children might be transported from the east and west coasts of the United States and placed in inland school houses was the subject discussed by O. E. Hill, assistant state director of education, at a meeting of the Mt. Pleasant Brotherhood Tuesday night.

A survey to determine the facilities for such a program is now being considered by the State Department of Education, Mr. Hill said.

War Highlights

WASHINGTON—The United States moved today to organize the entire Western Hemisphere for defense against Japan and other axis powers. The State Department announced that a meeting of foreign ministers of all the 21 American republics was being called to plan means for mutual defense in accordance with the pledge of reciprocal assistance and cooperation adopted at the meeting of ministers at Havana in July 1940. It will be held in Rio De Janeiro, in January.

LONDON—The war situation has changed “both favorably and adversely” in the last few days, Prime Minister Winston Churchill told the House of Commons today in announcing loss of the British battleship Prince of Wales and the battle cruiser Repulse. The prime minister said he would make a short statement at the next sitting of the House on the general war situation which he said “has from many points of view both favorably and adversely undergone important changes in the last few days.”

TOKYO—Via Official Japanese Wireless—Tokyo officials today denied reports that a Japanese aircraft carrier has been sunk off Hawaii. The suggestion was made that observers might have seen an American vessel, believed to be the United States aircraft carrier Enterprise, sink after being hit by Japanese bombs and mistook it for a Japanese ship.

NEW YORK—Chinese forces on the mainland back of Hong Kong are relieving Japanese pressure on the crown colony by attacking in two directions, the BBC reported today, according to CBS in New York. Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek’s forces are attempting to stem a land attack by the Japanese from the Canton region being carried out in conjunction with sea and air assaults.

NEW YORK—British radio broadcast picked up by NBC reports “heavy damage” on American ships resulted from large-scale Japanese aerial attack. No further details. Place of the attack, extent of the damage, unrevealed by British radio.

BUENOS AIRES—Argentine navy ministry denied today reports Nazi battleship Luetzow sighted off coast while raiding in South Atlantic.

LONDON—Britons stunned by loss of Prince of Wales and Repulse. Speculation arises over possibility Japanese have developed new aerial bomb or torpedo of destructive power hitherto unknown.

SAN FRANCISCO—Bay area of San Francisco and Sacramento, state capital, dimmed by blackouts. Presumed enemy planes off coast had been picked up by detectors.

LOS ANGELES—Radio stations of southern California ordered off air by Federal Communications Commission.

HONOLULU—Thunder of naval guns rolls in from the ocean again today, indicating another contact between United States and Japanese warships.

BERLIN—Unconfirmed reports persist Chancellor Hitler will “clarify” Germany’s stand on the United States-Japanese war today.

Japanese Attack On Important Island Turned Back

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10—The War Department in the first official communique of the war today announced the defeat of a “hostile attack” against the west coast of Luzon in the Philippine islands.

The attack occurred between the cities of San Fernando and Vigan, the War Department said.

The communique also disclosed that bombing attacks on six enemy transports on Vigan resulted in direct hits on three Japanese ships and damage to the remaining three.

NORTH HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 10—A London radio broadcast picked up today by NBC monitors declared: “According to advice from Manila, the American air force has successfully operated against Japanese navy units which are attacking the Philippines. American planes heavily damaged several navy units and scored direct hits on three Japanese transports, sinking at least one.”

TOKYO, Dec. 10—(Via Official Japanese Wireless)—Japanese imperial headquarters today admitted that two Japanese transports have been sunk and two others damaged but insisted that no lives were lost. Thirteen Japanese army planes have failed to return to their bases.

MANILA, Dec. 10—Japanese troops landed “in considerable strength” on Luzon, chief island of the Philippines today—going ashore despite a merciless attack on their transports by American bombing planes which sank one ship and damaged another.

(Editor’s Note: A British radio broadcast picked up by NBC said the American air force successfully operated against Japanese navy units attacking the Philippines, damaging several navy units and scoring hits on three Japanese transports.)

Japanese landings were said to have occurred at Aparre at the extreme northern tip of Luzon Island, about 300 miles from Manila, and at Biggam, 75 miles south of Aparre.

The official bulletin said the landings were made from six heavily loaded Japanese transports, which were believed to have come from Formosa under Japanese naval and aerial escort.

Force Attempted (Military observers believe that so numerous a train of transports indicates an invasion force is attempting to land.)

GERMAN ATTACK ON SEVASTOPOL PROVES FAILURE

MOSCOW, Dec. 10—The German drive against Sevastopol in the Crimea has failed and 15,000 German troops have been “annihilated,” the Soviet army newspaper Red Star said today.

KUIBYSHEV, Dec. 10—An official Russian high command communique today said fighting continued throughout the night on all fronts.

BERLIN, Dec. 10—Germany’s high command announced today that Russian attacks on the Eastern Front once more were “successfully repulsed” and that the Soviets “suffered serious bloody losses.”

Strong forces of German planes dispersed enemy troop formations and armored cars which were on the point of attacking on the Southern Front, the war communique said, and also effectively bombed Soviet air bases.

Swiss Correspondent Says Hitler May Speak In “Day Or Two”

Reuters Declares Position May Be Clarified By Chancellor

NEW YORK, Dec. 10—A British radio broadcast heard by NBC said today that Chancellor Hitler is “now back in Berlin to address the Reichstag.”

According to CBS, the Berlin correspondent of the Swiss newspaper Basler Nachrichten said that Hitler was expected to speak “in a day or two.”

BERLIN, Dec. 10—Reports still not officially confirmed swept Berlin today that the Reichstag will meet before nightfall to hear a pronouncement by Chancellor Hitler defining Germany’s official course with regard to the United States-Japanese war.

(Editor’s Note: In Tokyo yesterday the official Japanese spokesman, Tomokazu Hori, said: “We naturally expect Germany to declare war on the United States.”)

Reports that the Reichstag would meet increased amid intense diplomatic activity at the Wilhelmstrasse. They were strengthened by the fact that yesterday’s matinee and tonight’s performances at the Kroll Opera House, where the Reichstag meets, were cancelled.

(Editor’s Note: A Reuters (British) dispatch from Madrid quoted Spanish advices from Berlin saying Hitler was expected to “clarify the Reich’s position toward the United States” in an address before the Reichstag.)

BODY OF BRIGGS YOUTH IS SENT TO NEW HOLLAND

Although the Navy Department has not announced the result of its inquiry in the death of Eugene Bryant Briggs, 26, of New Holland, the body has been shipped from Norfolk, Va., and will arrive home in time for funeral services to be Friday at 2 p. m. at the New Holland Methodist Church.

The remains will arrive in Chillicothe at 5:55 a. m. Thursday on the Norfolk and Western railroad, Kirkpatrick and Sons, funeral directors, have been informed.

The body will remain at the funeral home until the hour of services, friends being permitted to call after noon Thursday.

Mr. Briggs was a chief petty officer in the United States Navy. His body was found in the Elizabeth River at the Norfolk naval base Saturday night, clanking a 10 day search.

He arrived at the base November 12 after enlisting in the naval reserve as a physical instructor on approval of his application by Lt. Comm. Gene Tunney, head of that branch of the navy.

He dropped from sight 15 days after his arrival, after writing letters to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Briggs, New Holland expressing enthusiasm for his new career. His personal effects, even his money and his billfold, were found among his possessions in his quarters.

Prince of Wales And Repulse Go Down At Malaya

Japanese Jubilant After Confirmation Of Sinkings; London Announces Attacks During Operations In Pacific

BERLIN, Dec. 10—The Japanese naval office announces that the gigantic British battleship King George V has been sunk, the German wireless reported from Tokyo today.

(There was no confirmation of this report.)

LONDON, Dec. 10—An official British spokesman admitted today that the battleship Prince of Wales and battle cruiser Repulse have been sunk.

The spokesman declared the two mighty British naval units were sent to the bottom while carrying out operations “against a Japanese attack on Malaya.”

TOKYO (Via Official Japanese Wireless) Dec. 10—Japanese imperial headquarters today announced destruction of the giant new British battleship Prince of Wales and the battle cruiser Repulse and declared the British Far Eastern fleet has been “obliterated.”

At the same time it was claimed an American submarine was sunk Monday morning off the island of Palawan in the Philippines.

Both huge British ships were sent to the bottom by aerial bombs off the eastern coast of Malaya, the Japanese announcement said.

Disclosure of the sinking caused wild jubilation in Tokyo. All Japanese radio networks broadcast the news. In Tokyo crowds gathered at street corners and snatched extra editions of newspapers.

Allies Offer Praise

The War Ministry announced the German and Italian military attaches in Tokyo had called at the War Ministry to offer their congratulations.

Meanwhile, the navy section of the imperial headquarters announced the navy has lost 38 planes since outbreak of the war with Britain and the United States.

It added, however, that no Japanese warship has been lost.

An official announcement said Emperor Hirohito sent a message of felicitation to the commander-in-chief of the Japanese fleet, Admiral Isoroku Yamamoto, congratulating the admiral on the “outstanding results of the great naval war in the Pacific against Britain and the United States.”

Simultaneously an important cabinet meeting was held at Premier Hideki Tojo’s residence, to decide on “important diplomatic matters.” Authorities said the decision reached will be announced by the government “some time tomorrow.”

An official communique said the military planes sent the two British warships to the bottom off the east coast of the Malayan Peninsula.

The Prince of Wales, launched in 1939 and a veteran of the battle that sank the German battleship Bismarck, was a 35,000-ton dreadnaught with a complement of 1,500 officers and men.

It arrived in the Far East only a few days ago prior to the opening of the Far Eastern conflict.

The battle cruiser Repulse, launched in 1916 as one of the powerful Renown class battle cruisers, was a 32,000-ton fighting ship which carried about 1,205 officers and men.

The special Japanese communique said:

“The British Far Eastern fleet was sighted off the eastern coast of the Malayan Peninsula at 11:30 a. m. Wednesday.

“Japanese aircraft immediately went into action.

“The Repulse was sunk instantly by bomb hits.

“At 12:29 p. m. the Prince of Wales was hit and listed to starboard as a result of direct hits. She attempted to escape but at 12:50 p. m. she received additional hits and was sunk.”

(The Prince of Wales was the warship aboard which President Roosevelt and British Prime Minister Winston Churchill signed and issued their “Atlantic Charter” when they met at sea several months ago.)

Honolulu Reports:

Explosions that sounded like the fire of heavy naval rifles rolled dimly over Honolulu today from out over the Pacific, leading to speculations that United States sea forces had contacted the Japanese “suicide” squadron that loosed the savage raid on this island Sunday and set off the war.

For the third straight night Honolulu and Pearl Harbor, the great American naval base, were blacked out as continued careful checks were made for casualties of Sunday’s unprovoked bombings. The toll now is more than 1,500 with about half of these fatalities.

Admiral Husband E. Kimmel, commanding the Pacific fleet, announced that complete lists of the military dead and wounded had been

ALL PRIVATELY OWNED PLANES DOWNED IN OHIO

Officials Take Control Of 1,340 Ships, 129 Airports

LOYALTY OF IMPORTANCE

Numerous Authorities At Meeting Conducted To Discuss Problem

COLUMBUS, Dec. 10—Flight of privately owned aircraft over Ohio was at a standstill today as state and federal officials moved swiftly to establish an iron control over the state's 1,340 personal planes and 129 airports to block fifth column activity.

Preliminary plans for storage of the planes and their restricted use only by fliers of proven loyalty were mapped at two conferences in Columbus.

Participating in the first gathering were Earl Johnson, wing commander of the Ohio division, civilian air patrol; Hal G. Sours, state highway director; Dr. R. H. Markwith, state health director; Adjt. Gen. Whittier S. Bird, commander of the state guard; and W. W. Jarrell of Cleveland, D. F. Peterson of Cincinnati and R. C. Hutton of Columbus, general inspectors for the Civil Aeronautics Authority.

Protection Mapped Here plans were mapped for complete protection of all vital production points, utilities and lines of communication in the state.

At the second conference, Johnson, the aeronautics inspectors, General Bird and Don C. Power, secretary to the governor, outlined preparations to ground and store all planes.

A complete outline of both phases of civilian air defense was then delivered to Maj. Gen. Daniel Van Voorth, commander of the fifth corps area at Fort Hayes, Columbus. He was to approve them finally before Johnson takes them to Washington Friday.

There they will be co-ordinated with plans from all the central states by Brig. Gen. John F. Curry, national commander of the civilian air patrol.

All planes are now grounded under war department orders. When finally concentrated at the 62 central fields, they will be under armed guard, night and day. Every private owner's license is suspended for the time being. It will not be reinstated until an application for reinstatement is made to the war department and aeronautics authority. Pilots will thereafter have to prove their citizenship and loyalty but not their ability to fly before they regain use of their planes.

Storage of the planes at 62 airports was arranged so that no personal pilot would be caused too much inconvenience by removing his plane too far from its regular home hangar.

Improper Use Feared Johnson said after the conference that he was not worried so much about the proper owners of the planes using them, but by the possibility of theft and improper use by enemy or Fifth Column forces from within.

Of the privately owned planes, he is most concerned over those that are kept in fields near owners' homes, rather than at regular airports, no matter how small and poorly equipped those parts are, Johnson added.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Link sausages need not be pricked before cooking. Add two tablespoons of water to the sausage in the frying pan, cover and cook slowly until water evaporates, then brown and the sausage will hold its shape.

When a leg of lamb for roasting with the skin side down, because the fat deposit is on the inside surface of a leg of lamb.

A dash of cologne sprayed around a room in which clear and cigarette smoke is thick, will clear the atmosphere readily. Try this at your next party.

Blackout Lasts Nearly Hour In Western Region

By James L. Kilgallen

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 10—Blackouts plunged the San Francisco Bay area and the state capital, Sacramento, 90 miles inland, into total darkness shortly before dawn today as the roar of enemy planes off the California coast presumably had been picked up by delicate army electrical detectors.

The San Francisco blackout lasted 57 minutes, from 2:23 a. m. until the "all clear" signal was given at 3:20 a. m.

Sacramento went dark at the same time but the blackout in that city was lifted two minutes earlier.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Ater and son Raymond and Mr. and Mrs. William Beckman of Louisville, Kentucky, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Ater and son Gene, Mr. Sterling, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ater and daughter Mabel, and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Ater and sons Gordon and Ronald were among guests at a dinner Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ward Willis of near Williamsport.

ASHVILLE

Said he never did like snakes very well so he turned in and killed the one he found in the woods the other day all coiled up ready to bite him. This is a "true kill" story as told by Fred Snyder living over near the Fairfield-Pickaway line.

Son of the near "Marcy tribe" Errol Decker, John White and the venerable Benson S. Custer were here at headquarters yesterday. In "taking count," found that Mr. Custer was 89 years of age on August 22, last, exactly four years younger to the day, than the well known Jerome Peters at St. Paul, 93 years of age last August. School teacher Peters yet has in perfect condition the school register he used at Brobst Hill school, west of Marcy, 69 years ago, and with no interference for awhile, we'll be sighting the names of the best lot of kiddies that ever went to anybody's school. There were 54 of them in the rather small one-room building, with scarcely more than a dozen yet living to tell about it.

Miss Lena Parks is here at the home of G. A. Hook and family making a good recovery from a tonsil removal operation. . . . George Jones has returned to his shoe repair shop after taking a few weeks out at a Capital City hospital. . . . Luther Cooper at Berger Hospital from here, is reported "slowly getting better." . . . Up at what is known as the Messick building place, plenty action was on there yesterday, both Paul Geiger and Mrs. Schiff having a force of workers making substantial and much needed improvements.

William Sampson Jr. is here on a 15-day furlough at the home of his father, William Sampson, northeast of town. When leaving here it will be for a Texas flying field. He is an airplane schooled mechanic in training since last April.

Ed. Ett has sold his dwelling property north of the U. B. Church, to Rev. Arthur Fultz with his family, wife and three children, will occupy same in the not far distant future. Mr. Ett, after disposing of his household goods, will go to Lancaster making his home there with his son-in-law and daughter, Andrew and Mrs. Bigum.

Dewey Donaldson and wife now occupy second-floor rooms in the Hook store building.

A fine Christmas tree, now very soon, will be occupying a desirable place somewhere in central Ashville. Simon Rife, over in Walnut Township, who has supplied these splendid trees for several years.

San Francisco's adjacent sister cities across the bay—Oakland, Berkeley and Alameda—lay like patches of black velvet along the gently sloping hillsides.

All along the Pacific Coast military forces swung into place to repel anticipated attacks by sea and air as reports filtered in of continued hard fighting in the Philippine Islands.

The long western coastline, from Alaska to Mexico, was on the alert with the armed services and citizenry working energetically in anticipation of hostile action at any point at any time. Blacked out during the entire night were the coast's three vital naval points, the Mare Island Yard in San Francisco Bay, Los Angeles Harbor and Puget Sound at Seattle.

It's foolish to expect Americans to be neutral about Hitler and his murderous assault on civilization.

eral years in the past, is doing this same thing again. The decorating committee composed of Hoadley Brintlinger, Cecil Scott and William Toole will be at work soon placing the village in its Christmas attire. The business men, too, will be doing their art toward nicely decorating their places of business.

The local school board was in session at the school building. No business was transacted except the paying of bills. The school youngsters' holiday vacation will begin at the closing of school Tuesday evening, December 23, and continue until Monday, January 5.

Among the local ones starting for military training today are Chester Hedges and Robert Kirkpatrick. . . . Val and Mrs. Frushing were recently guests of Mrs. M. G. Lerch at the County Seat.

The Commercial Law classes of AHS has been busy studying case problems and hearing reports made by the students on cases incidental to the various chapters studied thus far.

Chapters on which case problems have been discussed are Contracts, Bailments, Partnerships, Corporations, Negotiable Instruments Insurance.

Most of the class members reported upon subjects relating to auto accidents, injuries, hostile fires in dwellings and barns, and the like.

Those reporting auto accidents were Elmer Neff, Carl McChurg, Elroy Reid, Geneva Partee, Erma Bowers, Paul Pettibone, Leonard Campbell, Glenn Malone, Harold Myers, Boyd Kuhlwein and Don Duval. Others who gave reports were Wilma Smith, injuries; Dorothy Wellington, fire damages; Eugene Wilson, fire loss, and Bill Cain, traffic problems.

Next game of basketball for the fast-stepping Broncos is Friday night with St. Mary's of Lancaster furnishing the opposition. Another game and another victory is the predominating thought of those who witnessed the smashing victory over Pickaway last week. All boys came out of the battle in good shape and will be anxious for the referee's opening blast this coming Friday night. It may be said in backing up the prediction that another win will be recorded, that the St. Mary's aggregation thus far has not been very successful in its games, having won but one contest.

Miss Jeannette Wenrich entertained the Win-One Class and high school group of the Lutheran Church at a Christmas party, Monday, at her home.

Mrs. Etta Hoffman and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Justus were Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Ward Miller and family of Amanda.

The Ladies Bible Class of the Lutheran Church will hold its annual Christmas meeting at the home of Mrs. Jacob Warner, December 16. There will be a Christmas program, election of officers and gift exchange.

The Rev. and Mrs. Harold Dutt spent Sunday and Monday in Marion.

Mr. and Mrs. Alton Noggle and daughter, Joan and Jenn, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Huston and daughter, Joyce, of Washington Township.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Justus and Mrs. Mary Justus called Saturday on Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bush of New Holland.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Justus called Tuesday evening on Mr. and Mrs. Kirby Creager and son of Ashville.

The Ladies Aid of the Evangelical church had its Christmas party at the home of Mrs. Oscar Dozer Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Arch Drake spent Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. Harold Conrad and son, Keith, of Circleville.

The Evangelical E. T. C. E. met Monday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Drake. After a short business session, a program consisting of Christmas readings and contests was given. The election for the coming year was held. Those chosen were president, John Florence; vice president, Howard Huston; secretary, Dortha Mae Drum; treasurer, Alton Noggle; pianist, Lulu Drake. Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess to the 25 members and visitors.

GRANGERS WARNED ABOUT FALLING WATER LEVELS

COLUMBUS, Dec. 10 -- Ohio State Grange members were warned today that unless a broad program of conservation is instituted by the legislature, the falling water level in the state will make the majority of farm land arid and untillable within the next 50 years.

The warning was sounded at the 69th annual session of the state grange by Lot A. Bromfield, famous author turned farmer.

The water problem is the foremost facing agriculture in the state today, Bromfield asserted. Declaring that it could be corrected and that on his 800-acre Richmond County farm he had proved it, he added:

"When I took over the farm three years ago we were losing 50 percent of the rainfall by rapid runoff. Proper planting and ploughing—ploughing the furrows with the contour of the land—has now reduced the runoff to 10 percent."

The famous author urged the grange to constitute itself a lobby that "could force the necessary legislation."

L. J. Tabor, of Columbus, former master of the National Grange, devoted all of his address to the war with Japan.

Election of officers was to feature today's session of the convention.

Chamber of Commerce Pledges Support in All-Out War Effort

TELEGRAM SENT TO WASHINGTON BY CITY GROUP

4-H Beef Club Boys And Girl Guests Tuesday Evening

WILLIAM MILLS SPEAKS

Eight-Point Program For Organization Outlined By Ohioan

Circleville Chamber of Commerce, Tuesday night, only a day after Congress had declared war on Japan, pledged its support to the United States and to the President.

Wednesday, a telegram carrying this message will be sent to A. W. Hawkes, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce in Washington. It will read:

"Through you and your organization of the United States Chamber of Commerce, we, the Circleville Chamber of Commerce, desire to express to the President of the United States our unswerving loyalty in this time of national crisis."

The pledge to the government was made on the motion of J. H. Linback, Montclair Avenue.

Guests of the Chamber of Commerce were five 4-H Beef Club winners who attended the International Livestock Exposition, three of them being sent by members of the Chamber of Commerce. The trip for Miss Lois Deffenbaugh, Sallertown Township, was sponsored by J. W. Eschelman and Son; for Joe Vause, Duvall, by the Ralston-Purina Company and for Donald Hoover, Ashville, by the Circleville Lumber Company.

All three club members told of their experiences at the Exposition. Other club members present were Robert Peters and Busse Hedger, both of Ashville. All were presented to Chamber members by Agricultural Agent F. K. Blair.

Principal speaker at the meeting was William A. Mills, Columbus, director of organization relations of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, who presented an eight-point program which can be utilized by the local chamber in the present emergency as a demonstration of "practical patriotism."

Program Essential

The speaker pointed out that while there may be some change in emphasis in normal Chamber of Commerce programs, they are just as essential, if not more essential, in the nation's war economy than they were previously. These phases of Chamber of Commerce activity relate to agriculture, industry, retail methods and civic procedure.

However, Mr. Mills urged members of the Circleville Chamber to give thought to the job of their organization as it is related to the present crisis.

"The job," he said, "as I see it, is:

"1. Don't jump into any new enterprises and new fields of activity without weighing very carefully whether they represent a needless expenditure of money and energy without making any essential contribution to defense;

"2. Be very careful of schemes that are advanced solely for the personal profit of some individual or group of individuals who desire to capitalize on the popularity of defense activity;

"3. Contact your Mayor and the Chairman of your Civilian Defense Council and if none is organized, see that one is organized and when organized, cooperate with it enthusiastically;

"4. Offer your services as individuals as active participants of the various local defense authorities, and encourage others to volunteer for similar service;

"5. Create an emergency defense committee which will have the right to speak and act for the Chamber of Commerce on matters of community-wide interest when it is not possible to follow the usual organization procedure;

"6. Appoint a committee to study the problems of post-war period;

"7. Make the position of your organization very emphatic on the need for reduction of non-defense expenditures. This was important as we prepared for defense, it is more important now as we prepare for war;

"8. Insist that nothing be done

WPA SUMMONS SHORT CIRCUIT ENGINEERS FOR CAUSES FLAMES THURSDAY MEET IN MOVIE MOTOR

Approximately 40 city and county engineers, representing sponsors of WPA projects in 20 Central Ohio counties, will meet with WPA officials 10:00 a. m., Thursday, December 11, at the Armory Building, Ohio State University.

Purpose of the meeting is to discuss Federal aid WPA programs proposed for the six months period beginning January 1st. Procedures, regulations and policies also will be discussed, Mr. Kelly said.

Henry McCrady, Pickaway County engineer, Circleville, has been invited to attend the meeting.

Mr. Kelly stated that WPA will present to the engineers some new ideas about planning and operations which will be of assistance to the engineers in the development of city and county sponsored WPA programs.

as a war emergency that will needlessly change the social and economic conditions under which you operate, looking forward always to the re-establishment of normal conditions after the war."

In conclusion, Mr. Mills said: "Things don't just happen—organization and teamwork make them happen. This Chamber of Commerce can be a powerful agency for good; it makes things happen in this community.

"A good thing to remember, and a better thing to do, is to work with the construction gang and not the wrecking crew. You can have the kind of a town you want—things don't just happen."

U. S. NAVY NEEDS MEN IN GROUND WORK TRAINING

Aviation Field Open For Recruits, Columbus Area Reports

FOUR STATIONS READY

Numerous Courses Await Volunteers; Radio Jobs Are Open

Announcement was made in Washington, D. C., today that the U. S. Navy will need more men who desire basic training for aviation ground work. To supply this need, schools have been established at four separate Naval air stations to give instruction in the work of aviation metallsmith, aviation machinist's mate, aviation ordnanceman and aviation radioman. Locations of these schools are Jacksonville, Florida; Norfolk, Virginia; Pensacola, Florida; and San Diego, California.

Information from the Columbus Recruiting Station points out that these schools are open to recruits who have the aptitude and qualify for this schooling on the completion of their recruit training period and before their assignment to sea duty. These aviation ground work schools are called Class "A."

Schools, Group IV, because they give basic instruction and are the 4th group of trade schools open to recruits, the others being Group I, electrical and ordnance; Group II, communication and clerical; and Group III, machinists, metalworkers and aviation ordnancemen.

Special Instruction

The aviation metallsmith course gives special instruction in the properties of metals, heat-treatment of metals, cutting, forging and in those phases of welding and brazing essential to aviation. Aviation machinist's mate training covers bench, vise and floor work necessary to the machinist and instruction in the use of power tools. U. S. seamen who are interested in this work will also obtain practical experience in the operation, care and repair of aviation engines used in the Navy and will learn to assemble and disassemble such engines as well as learn to install them in planes and check all phases of operation such as carburetion, timing and lubrication.

Aviation ordnancemen training consists of instruction in the use and maintenance of machine-guns and other weapons used in Naval aircraft. This course includes a study of bore-sighting guns, synchronizing gun fire with propellers in motion, mounting and effective use of guns. The recruit entering this course of instruction also will learn the use of gun cameras, and the rigging and release of high-speed targets for practice.

Aviation radiomen receive general radio training in addition to those phases of radio peculiar to aircraft.

In addition to the technical job training outlined above, there are nearly fifty trade jobs and vocations for which patriotic young men can receive training when they join Uncle Sam's new "Two-Ocean" Navy.

JUNIOR FARMERS

Members of the Perry Township Junior Farmers 4-H Club completed a successful year with Jay Skinner as their leader and were entertained at supper at the home of John Skinner, club president. Tables were filled with ice cream, wieners, marshmallows, cake and cocoa.

The club had a good record for the year as the 10 members had but six absences in 12 meetings. One boy won honors at the Ohio State Junior Fair. There were six blue ribbons, six red ribbons and two white ribbons won in competitions by the members this year. Members of the club that completed their project and were awarded their certificates at the end of the year by F. K. Blair, county extension agent, were John Skinner, president; Edwin Buck, secretary; Johnny Williams, treasurer; Jack Hamman, news reporter; Jack Turner, Jack Armentrout, Bob Armentrout, Glenn Gerhardt and Zella Dewey.

ment to Washington from whence survivors will be informed. He made no mention of the number. Neither has any accurate count been announced as to civilian casualties, although city officials said they were severe. Property damage also is acknowledged to be heavy, although unestimated.

Speedy forces from Pearl Harbor were seen putting to sea even while death rained from the skies Sunday. It is presumed these have caught up with the Japanese carrier, or carriers, and escorting ships and have engaged them, or they may have intercepted fresh enemy contingents heading for the battered island.

The fate of the islands of Midway, Wake and Guam, American air and naval bases between Honolulu and Manila, had not been cleared up. The Japanese claimed success in occupying the islands, but United States officials in Honolulu would not confirm the claims. All they would say was that enemy reports might be expected to be exaggerated.

Singapore Reports:

SINGAPORE, Dec. 10.—Naval and air reinforcements, including bomber and fighter planes, have arrived in Singapore from the Netherlands East Indies, it was announced officially today.

A new battle broke out north of Kuantan on the Malayan Peninsula today as Japanese forces once more attempted a landing under terrific British bombing.

An official British military communique said the Japanese were being held back in their efforts to land heavy reinforcements on the northern section of the peninsula for a push across Malaya above Singapore.

"The enemy continued its air and land efforts in North Malaya without making much progress," the communique said.

"Early Wednesday the Japanese were reported to have attempted a landing on the Malayan east coast just north of Kuantan, half way between Singapore and the Thailand frontier. They are being engaged." Kuantan is about 200 miles north of Singapore.

The communique stated that during air attacks on Butterworth airbase in Panang five Japanese planes were shot down.

It added that reconnaissance planes located a "considerable number" of enemy ships off Singapore, Kota Bharu and Pattani on the Malay coast.

Heavy fighting was declared to be still raging around the Kota Bharu airbase, just below the Thai border. British imperial forces, including Australian veterans of the Syrian and North African campaigns, were said to have reached the Kota Bharu sector.

An earlier Singapore war bulletin said R.A.F. reconnaissance flights had revealed an additional 25 Japanese transports were moving down the Gulf of Siam along the coast of Thailand, escorted by warships, in an apparent attempt to land still more reinforcements in northern Malaya.

Last-minute dispatches from Hong Kong said Japanese efforts to break across the crown colony's northern frontier were continuing but were being driven back under shattering British fire.

Hong Kong army headquarters said British imperial troops, including Canadian units with American volunteers in their ranks, "successfully maintained" defense of the Hong Kong frontier.

TWO AIRPLANES TOKYO KEEPING CAUSE ALARM EYE ON RUSSIA

Raid Warning Sounds in Terms Of Neutrality Pact New York For 25 Minutes Must Be Adhered To, Say Jap Advises

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—Presence of "two unidentified planes" in the New York area today prompted a 25-minute air raid warning throughout the city and nearby suburbs.

Lieut. Fitzhugh Quier at the City Air Control Center said the two planes—"their nationality still undetermined"—were reported by spotters on Long Island.

Indications were there was a more conscientious observation of the warning signals than obtained yesterday.

Overnight, many office windows had been coated with lamplight and shrouded with curtains.

The alert was not only city-wide but extended out into Long Island. Farmingdale police reported an alert there at 8:51 a. m., 16 minutes after the New York alarm was sounded.

AXIS PRESSURE TO WIN FRENCH FLEET FEARED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—Official Washington today is deeply concerned over the danger of Germany getting control of the French fleet at French African bases.

With the United States now engaged in total war with Japan, it is feared the European axis powers are bringing renewed pressure of the strongest kind to bear on the Vichy government of France for the use of African bases and units of the French fleet.

The reported visit of Admiral Francois Darlan, French premier, to Rome to see Mussolini is considered part of the axis pressure drive on Vichy.

It is believed in Washington that Mussolini intends to demand facilities for the axis in French Tunisia.

5,803 ALIENS HELD

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—Attorney General Biddle today ordered naturalization of all enemy aliens in the United States and possessions suspended for 90 days and simultaneously announced that since the war began Sunday, 5,803 Japanese, German and Italian have been apprehended in this country and Hawaii.

MIAMISBURG, O., SOLDIER REPORTED KILLED, LIVES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—The War Department announced today that Pvt. Wilbur Carr, of Miamisburg, Ohio, reported killed in action in Hawaii by the War Department yesterday, is "alive and well."

Library Notes

New Books Added

The Philadelphia Cook Book by A. W. Reed.—Famous dishes and menus from colonial days to the present are brought together in this unusual and valuable collection. Many of the recipes came from old family notebooks. Each chapter contains descriptive and historical notes that give a background for the feast and food. There is one section on menus for outdoor summer occasions and indoor dining the year-round. One of the best chapters is on the preparation of native wild game as prepared in the fine Pennsylvania manner. Roast grouse with mushroom or chestnut filling, deviled turkey eggs, or venison steak are examples of dishes which can be recommended without hesitation by anyone personally acquainted with the manner of cooking and eating in the Pennsylvania Dutch country.

Pulitzer Prize Poems—compiled by Marjorie Barrows. An anthology of Pulitzer prize poems, 1922-41, which represents some of the best poems that have been written in America for the past twenty years. This is the first collection of Pulitzer winning poetry. In the foreword the publisher states: "the poems which have been selected are not the highly difficult poems appreciated by the few, but the simple, better-loved poems that a larger American public has already greeted with enthusiasm."

Through Hell and High Water, by the Explorers Club.—Exciting adventure in the four corners of the earth by the foremost living explorers, told in their own words. Among the contributors, all members of the Explorers Club, are Roy Chapman Andrews, Julien Bryan, Kenneth Collins, Hasselott Davis, J. Allan Dunn, Richard Finnie, Clyde Fisher, Father Hubbard, Don Mac Millan, Gregory Mason, and Lowell Thomas.

The Playleaders Manual by M. E. Mulac.—This manual was prepared with the idea of combining in one volume suggestions, projects, and program aids for the playleader in cities or rural areas. Although planned for playground leaders primarily, there is much material to be used by teachers in the schoolroom, gym or on the playground; by camp counselors; 4-H leaders; athletic directors and social recreation leaders. The subjects dealt with include: Organization and administration of playgrounds, first aid, game leadership, various games, contests, and tournaments; folk dances, story-telling, and dramatics; nature study, handicraft, stunts, puzzles, and party programs.

EXECUTIVE SAYS NATION FIGHTING ALL AXIS FOES

good news, the defeats and the victories—the changing fortunes of war.

"I repeat," he said in chilling tones, "that the United States can accept no result save victory, final and complete. Not only must the shame of Japanese treachery be wiped out, but the sources of international brutality, wherever they exist, must be absolutely and finally broken."

"We expect to eliminate the danger from Japan, but I would serve us ill if we accomplished that and found that the rest of the world was dominated by Hitler and Mussolini."

"Remember always that Germany and Italy, regardless of any formal declaration of war, consider themselves at war with the United States at this moment just as much as they consider themselves at war with Britain and Russia. And Germany puts all the other republics of the Americas into the category of enemies."

Mr. Roosevelt frankly said all plans are being laid on the basis not only of a long war, but a hard one.

"That is the yardstick by which we measure what we shall need and demand," he asserted, "money, materials, doubled and quadrupled production—ever-increasing. The production must be not only for our own Army and Navy and Air forces. It must reinforce the other armies and navies and air forces fighting the Nazis and the war lords of Japan throughout the Americas and the world."

Policies Outlined

To this end, the President announced adoption of two broad policies.

"The first is to speed up all existing production by working on a seven day week basis in every war industry, including the production of essential raw materials," he said.

"The second policy, now being put into form, is to rush additions to the capacity of production by building more new plants, by adding old plants, and by using the many smaller plants for war needs."

This was the $150,000,000,000 "victory program" which Mr. Roosevelt pointed out must be financed through payment of more taxes, purchase of more bonds, the foregoing of extra profits, and harder and longer work.

Although the President did not reveal specific details of naval, land and air losses in the Pacific as many had hoped, he was frank enough in portraying the general picture.

"So far," he said, "the news has been all bad. We have suffered a serious set-back in Hawaii."

"The casualty lists of these first few days will undoubtedly be large."

"Many American soldiers and sailors have been killed by enemy action. American ships have been sunk, American airplanes have been destroyed."

Mr. Roosevelt gave his solemn promise to the nation it would get detailed news "as quickly as possible," but said at present he lacked sufficient accurate information "to state the exact damage which has been done to our naval vessels at Pearl Harbor."

"Admittedly the damage is serious," he said. "But no one can say how serious until we know how much of this damage can be repaired and how quickly the necessary repairs can be made."

The chief executive urged the public to reject all rumors, warning that "these ugly little hints of complete disaster fly thick and fast in war-time."

MICKEY ROONEY ADMITS HE'LL SOON TAKE BRIDE

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 10.—Mickey Rooney's going to get married. The youthful holder of screen box office records admitted today that he and Ava Gardner, 18-year-old film player, were indeed very much in love with each other and hoped the wedding would take place soon.

"We've got to confer with Ava's mother and mine about the wedding plans," Mickey said, "but we hope it will be very soon, especially since these are times when no one knows just what is going to happen."

Ordered Blackout, Evacuation

being attempted by the Japanese.

Manila is located on the southern part of the island. Also at several points on Luzon are vital defense areas.

U. S. Army and Philippine constabulary officials said they were probing reports of a conspiracy in and around Manila to help enemy forces.

False Alarms Heard

These reports, included, they said, alleged false air raid alarms and the marking of targets by lights while alien aircraft were in the process of attacks.

The Philippine capital had two air raid alarms last night, it was said, which were found to be false when checked closely. Two workers were placed under arrest and held for investigation.

An officer of the U. S. Army said flares and other lights were seen near the big Nichols air field, on the outskirts of Manila, while the field was under a bombing attack and was supposed to be blacked out.

SCIOTO TWP. SCHOOL NEWS

Grade News

The Scioto first grade pupils are now studying about Indiana and their homes. They have also learned about their habits and ways of living.

In geography class the third grade pupils are studying about some of the first villages on the land. They have divided the class into four committees and have begun to build one of these villages. They are using clay, paper, straw, and sticks for building material. The third grade pupils are also making a circus parade. All the animals, clowns, band, gons, and people are drawn free hand.

The following pupils in the fourth grade have neither been absent nor tardy this year: Nancy Dean, Eugene Ehnann, Paul Goldhardt, Helen Hauglin, Jean Mattox, John McComb Roy Shadler, Martha Head, Charles Shade, Robert Shanck, Richard Shast, and Loney Strobel. The pupils have made Health Booklets using the alphabet. In Reading they made booklets of "Where Our Way of Living Came From". In geography they are studying about South America.

Quite a few pupils in the fifth grade are taking music lessons. They are Beulah Fausnaugh, Betty Gochenour, Fred Dountz, and Emajean Sprouse. Fred Dountz and Jimmy Raser play in school band which was recently organized.

The pupils of the sixth grade regret the loss of one of their pupils—Melva Deffenbaugh who transferred to Darby. This reduces their enrollment to thirty. Those taking instrumental music lessons in the sixth grade are Charlotte Holshue, Barbara Prindle, Betty Linder, Dorothy Reed, Helen Gochenour, Jerry Raser, and Jerry Shipley.

During the last six weeks the seventh grade have gained two new pupils—Dixie Zwayer and Charles Woodrow. Their total enrollment is now thirty-eight. During English period the seventh grade pupils have been studying about business letters and have been writing applications.

Billie Zwayer has enrolled in the eighth grade which now has a total enrollment of thirty-seven. In English the eighth grade pupils are studying the comparison of adjectives and adverbs. In arithmetic they are studying about buying articles on the installment plan.

General News

The Junior Class Play entitled "Mother-in-Law Blues" was well attended December 2. This play was directed by Mrs. Gulick the class adviser. The Juniors of Scioto wish to thank every one for attending.

Bertha Painter, a sophomore, represented the Methodist Church of Commercial Point and our school in the Prince of Peace Declaration Contest held at Circleville Sunday, December 7.

The December meeting of the P.T.A. will be held Thursday night, December 12, in the school auditorium.

MEN ENROLLED AT SHELBY WIN BOOSTS IN PAY

Average Check Of $43.86 Paid To Soldiers In Louisiana Camp

SPECIALS ARE PROVIDED

Many Receive $10 Bonus For Having Served Over Year

CAMP SHELBY, Miss., Dec. 10—"Gone is the day 'When my pay was so much hay'."

That take off on "Old Black Joe" might well have been the theme song of the average American enlisted man on payday, December 1. For, no longer does that man with a gun dish out for laundry, postage stamps, haircut, and cigarettes . . . and then have to borrow a dime from his tent-mate for a beer on the second of the month because his $21 was already gone.

The average enlisted man in the 87th Division, a typical outfit with 14,476 soldiers . . . auto-graphed his payroll December 1 and was handed $43.86. A couple of regiments (there are a total of 11 in this division) did extremely well. The 112th Engineers received $50.96 per capita, and the Special Troops were "knocked under by a nickel," getting $50.61. These regiments, because of their specialized work, are both small and well stocked with non-commissioned officers and specialists.

The enlisted man may earn as little as $21 a month as a basic pay (if he has not completed his four months of service or if he has been "reduced" or as a disciplinary measure) or he may obtain a base pay of $126 each thirty days (if he's a master sergeant, the highest grade a "non-com" can achieve). If he's married and is one of the first three grades of sergeants, he can apply for and be remunerated at a rate of $1.15 a day for "monetary allowance in lieu of quarters" or as the boys put it, "to keep the better half in fur coats."

Third Getting More—Men who have served over one year since the National Guard Mobilization Act was passed are now cracking a "bonus" of $10 a month, a bonus granted by Congress concurrently with the Draft Extension Act. About one-third of the men in the 87th Division are now drawing this extra "aw-buck."

Soldiers with more than four years service are slated for a 10 percent of base pay increase, and each additional four years adds another 5 percent to a man's monthly pay envelope. Thus, a master sergeant ($126) with a wife ($35.60), having served one year since the Guard Act ($10) and three years sometime prior to the Act ($12.60) is entitled to $184.25. This figure is a far cry from the over publicized army penuriousness.

The $43.86 average per man was computed after the soldier has paid for his army insurance and after subtraction for lost property, damaged property, fines etc. Lieutenant-Colonel Craig Moore, finance officer of the 87th Division, estimates that the average per capita before these deductions would be around $48.

CARPENTER ORDERED TO RANDOLPH FIELD DUTY

Captain Elwood C. Carpenter of Camp Shelby, Miss., has been ordered transferred to Randolph Field. Captain Carpenter, a former Pickaway County educator, lost his wife two weeks ago in an automobile accident near Hattiesburg, Miss.

A Scots ex-service man joined the Home Guard associated with a Coventry, England, factory and was equipped with a Lee-Enfield rifle. He handled it and said that it seemed as familiar to him as the one he used at Gallipoli. Still musing, he went home and looked up his old army papers. He found the number of his rifle and discovered it was the same as the one issued him.

F.D.R. Puts U.S. Formally at War

President Roosevelt signs the declaration of war against Japan at the White House, Dec. 8.

JOINT RESOLUTION
To declare war against the Japanese Empire.

Resolved, That the United States of America do hereby declare that there exists between the United States and the Japanese Empire a state of war.

Approved: Franklin D. Roosevelt

THE resolution voted by the joint session of Congress placing the United States at war against the Japanese empire is signed by President Roosevelt at the White House. The resolution, pictured below, carries the signatures of House Speaker Sam Rayburn, Vice President Henry Wallace and President Roosevelt.

SALE OF SEALS REACHES HALF WAY MARK HERE
The 35th annual Christmas Seal sale in Circleville and Pickaway County has reached its halfway mark. Miss Elizabeth Dunlap, executive secretary of the Pickaway County Tuberculosis and Health Association, revealed Wednesday.

Approximately $750 has been received from over 600 persons. Miss Dunlap reported. Eighty percent of the total proceeds of the Christmas Seal sale stay in the county, with fifteen percent of the total going to the state and five percent to national headquarters.

Friday has been designated as Health Day in the county schools, and rural school pupils will be asked to sell seals to their parents and friends.

In the last year tuberculosis killed approximately 10,000 more Americans than were killed in action, or died from wounds received in action, during the First World War.

Best available figures on the number of Americans killed in action, or died from wounds received in action, in all the wars the United States has fought since 1776 show a total of 244,450. In the four-year period, 1937-1940, tuberculosis killed 254,988.

Civilian air-raid casualties in England during a ten-month period in 1940-41 were approximately 36,000. During a comparable ten-month period, tuberculosis took 30,000 lives in the United States.

HARDEST HIT BY THE LEAD BAR is the Reynolds Metal Co., go-getting competitor of giant Alcoa. Several months ago, as a patriotic move when the aluminum shortage became acute, Reynolds, a big foil manufacturer, stopped using aluminum in their product. At considerable cost the company converted its plants to use lead instead.

The anti-lead priority order is a double-barreled blow to Reynolds. It not only puts the company completely out of the tin-foil business, with thousands of workers thrown out of jobs, but it also jeopardizes the firm's booming aluminum business that for the first time is giving Alcoa real competition.

Reynolds went into aluminum production by means of an RFC loan. As security RFC took a lien on all Reynolds plants.

Thus, while one government agency has a mortgage on Reynolds, another government agency is cutting the ground out from under Reynolds in regard to paying off its government mortgage.

LUCKY HIT

That lucky hit by a British aerial torpedo on the propellers of the ill-fated Nazi battleship, Bismarck, was a shot heard around the world in naval circles.

It has started reconsideration of designs that will result in far-reaching changes in naval construction.

Except for the direct hit on the Bismarck's driving gear, which slowed her down and enabled the British fleet to close in, the giant Nazi battleship might have escaped to rove the seas and prey on shipping. This fact has sunk home to naval builders and they have become extremely conscious of this Achilles Heel. Orders have gone out to devise protection for ships' propellers.

The answer to the engineering problem involved is not an easy one.

Bulges extending beyond a ship's propellers would offer some protection, but this would be offset by serious reduction in propulsive power and maneuverability. Some other solution has to be found.

One thing is certain: The German's had none up to the time they built the Bismarck.

LEADED ORDER

Next on the pan for grilling by the Senate defense investigating committee will be OPM's Priority Division, long a little business peeve.

Specific target of the tough Senate probes is the priority order banning the use of lead for making tin-foil. Reason given for this ukase was shortage of lead for defense purposes. Committee members are convinced there is more to it than this.

They scent the trail of the powerful Aluminum Corporation of America, long the object of deep suspicion and sizzling condemnation by the committee.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour 2 pints of bile into your bowels every day. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It may just clog in the bowels. Then gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. You feel sour, sink and the world looks pink.

It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these 2 pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up and up." Give a package today. Taste as directed. Effective in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills, 10¢ and 25¢.

OVER-BOLD DRIVING

THE death rate for motor traffic in this country is appalling. It is also shameful. In a time of emergency we are wasting our greatest resources, which is American lives.

The National Safety Council reports that during the first ten months of this year our traffic deaths numbered 31,620, an increase of nearly one-sixth over the corresponding period of last year. This rate, if continued, would make a year's total of nearly 38,000 street and highway deaths.

The destruction of that many people in one city or state would be regarded as an overwhelming catastrophe. But we become so used to traffic fatalities that we pay little attention to them except when they strike close to our own homes. And even then we have a fatalistic tendency to accept the slaughter.

Kipling, noting our apparent disregard of human life a generation ago, wrote bitterly of the typical American: "His hands are red with blood; his heart leaps, like a child's, at little things." It is time we learned to be more concerned about the big things.

Most of this slaughter comes from our inveterate tendency to "take chances." It was a wise man who gave these three rules for living: Be bold, be bold, but be not too bold! Boldness is a virtue in an army but a fallacy on the highway.

YOUNG READERS

CHILDREN were invited to the book exhibit of the Child Study Association of New York recently. The young critics ranged in age from eight to 15 years; and came from private and public schools in the metropolis. They gave good account of themselves and their reading tastes in the discussions that followed the talks.

Most of them were agreed that career stories "made everything seem too rosy," which suggests that they would not have cared for the Alger and Henty books of a generation ago. They disliked unhappy endings, too, in which they were like a good many adults.

The youngsters defended their enthusiasm for the so-called comics by saying they were entitled to a little relaxation between a day at school and an evening of

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

UNIONS PROFIT HEAVILY

WASHINGTON — Recently The Washington Merry-Go-Round revealed that the House Naval Affairs Committee had unearthed sensational evidence about huge profits being made by shipbuilders, aircraft manufacturers and other defense firms. Further details on this will be unfolded when the committee makes public its full report shortly.

Contract profiteering, however, won't be the only bombshell in this report.

The committee also will disclose some startling facts about labor union finances. The committee sent out questionnaires to 162 AFL and CIO international unions. So far 101, or about two-thirds, have replied. A digest of their reports reveals the interesting fact that these unions had more than $73,000,000 salted away in their treasuries as of April 1, 1941.

Acquired through fees, per capita taxes and special assessments, the $73,000,000 represented an increase of about 25 percent over assets on September 1, 1939. The international unions profited to the extent of nearly $20,000,000 from the defense program.

In other words, these unions, like the contractors, did right smart for themselves out of the national emergency.

One of the biggest union beneficiaries of the defense program, the committee report will show, is the United Mine Workers, bossed by John L. Lewis.

The questionnaire received back from him disclosed that the UMW had a fat treasury balance in April of $4,014,075.80. Since then, there has been at least one special assessment, reported to have yielded another $1,000,000.

Note—Representative Carl Vinson of Georgia, committee chairman, is quietly planning to follow up his report with a bill to tax international unions the same as corporations. The Internal Revenue law now specifically exempts labor organizations. Under Vinson's bill international unions would be taxed but local unions would continue to be exempted.

homework. "Parents do light reading when they want to relax," said one boy.

A 12-year-old said he loved sea stories and had read "practically all of them." Another said he liked mystery stories but they had to be good ones, "not just bang-bang stuff without a decent thread of a story in it."

Kids' tastes, apparently, are as varied as other people's. Such an event as this critical session shows that they read more than their school texts and comics.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

BY MAKING the United States Latin-American conscious the war promises to prove a very profitable affair for our southern New World neighbors. Yankee big money is beginning to learn that they have tremendous resources to develop and shows signs of an urge to put up the necessary capital for the purpose. Naturally the inflow of a few billions in fresh outside cash into a somewhat primitive country is economically stimulating to the recipient people.

Accounts of Dutch Guiana's wealth-producing possibilities, following the dispatch of a Yankee protective force thitherward, illustratively has been first rate advertising, not only for the Netherlands possession itself, but for the whole area in its vicinity.

It's doubtful that more than about one North American in 100 ever had heard, previously, of the port of Paramaribo, or knew anything of its bauxite deposits' nearby riches or the potential but hitherto unappreciated productivity of the surrounding jungle.

Today Paramaribo pictures are appearing in all our newspapers, the National Geographical society's bulletins are describing the whole region in detail, and we're becoming fairly well informed on the subject.

Adjoining Brazil is getting its share of publicity, partly because it's so close to Guiana that it can't but get a percentage of notice and partly because it's co-operating with Uncle Sam in Guiana-esque protective activities against the chances of Nazi mischief-making in the Dutch colony.

RUBBER AVAILABLE

Not far from Paramaribo, along the South American east coastal bulge into the Atlantic, are the mouths of the Amazon, and up the Amazon are wild rubber trees galore. They doubtless need domesticating for gum-tapping purposes, but, considering our worrying concerning supplies for our tires and other manufacturing, it would seem as if it should be a job worth undertaking. Henry Ford started it about 25 years ago, but the experiment petered out, due to lack of shipping to bring the goo down the river.

So inland water transportation's an item not to be overlooked in a South American development program.

As for rubber, the trees grow all over western Brazil and down the eastward slopes of Colombia, Ecuador and Peru. Hence that's a quartet of republics that stand to get plenty of Yankee financial attention as the rubber-raising campaign gains headway.

Bolivia and Chile are rich in minerals. Not that they haven't mines already but they can stand more intensive digging into 'em.

Oil deposits are scattered all over—in Venezuela and Colombia, up and down the Andes, in eastern Patagonia and in the Chaco, which Argentina claims part of, and which Paraguay and Bolivia fought over recently.

One of the beauties of the situation is that we're so much friendlier with the Latin Americans than we used to be. Dutch Guiana isn't the first place we've occupied, to the Rio Grande's southward, with marines generally, weren't kindly and protective. Instead, they usually were to enforce collection of money or to squelch anti-Yankee tendencies. They were resented like sixty and resulted in bad relationships.

Now it appears that our mission's to spend money in our neighbors' countries rather than to collect some from 'em, forcibly.

CO-OPERATION NOW

Accordingly, when we move into Guiana, we find Brazil outright helping us, the rest of the Latins are acquiescent and even the Dutch are appreciative of our protection of 'em, against Herr Hitler's agents' anticipated dirty work.

How it'll pan out in the end is a problem to guess on.

As we horn in on Latin American resources' development, if our capital shows an inclination simply to exploit 'em for our own exclusive benefit, giving them none of the gravy, they're pretty sure to get sore over it, just as our Yankee hol' polloi did, in the days when we were doing our own developing, here in the then comparatively uncivilized United States.

But maybe we'll be slicker than that this time.

President Roosevelt, Vice President Wallace, Secretary Hull and Pan-American Co-ordinator Rockefeller clearly can be depended on to keep up Good Neighborliness while they're at it. We've had administrations, though, that weren't so tactful, and what the future has in store is a matter of speculation.

Red Cross Help Store Up Blood Banks

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Among the other numerous defense plans, some arrangement has to be made for blood transfusions so that all materials will be ready, available and no time will be wasted in the face of an emergency. In order to do this, a system of what is known as blood banks is being used. These blood banks are being collected largely through the work of the Red Cross. A blood bank is not whole blood, but blood serum that has been collected under sterile conditions and is preserved in a tight, sterile flask ready for use. It has been found in practical work that whole blood is not always necessary where a transfusion is required, but that blood serum alone is quite as satisfactory in cases of shock.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

The blood banks prepared in this way keep in good condition for several months and perhaps longer.

Prisoners Give Blood

In a number of prisons, prisoners have volunteered to give blood for these blood banks and are doing it in a spirit of cheerful and whole-hearted loyalty.

I have had a letter from one of the men who is superintending the collecting of blood from his fellow prisoners. He tells me, by the way, that he needs a centrifuge (he is a trained laboratory technician). I feel that people should support this work in the penitentiaries by helping them out with apparatus wherever needed.

Invaluable time will be saved in giving blood transfusions to soldiers of the United States Army because each man's identification tag will now be stamped to indicate his blood group determined by army surgeons in advance. A new testing technique will be used by army surgeons to classify blood groups quickly, safely and cheaply.

No matter whether blood transfusions use whole blood or serum, they can be given safely only after tests have shown that the blood of the recipient will mix safely with that of the donor. Only human blood can be used. All human blood falls into four recognized classes. If blood of the wrong type should be given the patient, clumping of the donor's cells would occur in the body of the patient causing a shock reaction, and possibly death.

Saves Valuable Time

The necessary tests to determine these groups, made by the old method, were too time-consuming when minutes might mean the difference between life and death for the patient.

The blood banks, each of which is properly designated showing to which blood group it belongs, are a very necessary part of emergency stores if the present conflict should develop into a serious shooting war.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

M. M. M.: "Is there any possible danger of contracting tuberculosis from old letters, books and papers owned by someone who died with tuberculosis some years ago?"

Answer: The possibility is very remote. The transmission of tuberculosis, according to our modern ideas is entirely by human contact. While it is possible that the tubercle bacilli may live on papers of that kind, the chances of infection by this means are negligible.

Mr. L. W. M.: "I would very much like to know your opinion of South American mate as a drink for middle-aged people."

Answer: Mate is an excellent drink for middle-aged people. Those who like it find that it is somewhat more stimulating than tea or coffee and so far as I know, it does not do any more harm than they do—which is practically none.

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE

PROBABLY never before in their lives had Irene Carter and Roy Leonard felt less like attending a dinner than they did that evening. And yet there they were at Mrs. Daniel Van Vert Jones' dinner in honor of Susan Farmer; there they were trying to appear gay and carefree, fooling some of the people some of the time, but themselves not at all.

They chatted, laughed somewhat hollowly, and made complimentary remarks about the food. But most of what they ate was like ashes in their mouths.

Mrs. Jones, who was never happier than when playing hostess, was in her glory. She beamed on everyone, even on Mr. Jones, who now and then forgot and called Susan "my dear." She wasn't going to let anything spoil her dinner, not even her husband's weakness. She would speak to him afterwards. Even the twins, Rose and Lily, received their share of Mrs. Jones' beaming. They had behaved themselves remarkably well, which, Mrs. Jones decided, was because they were such gluttons for food. Therefore, being busily occupied with a decidedly tasteful and attractively served meal, they had no time for wisecracks and shocking expressions.

Mrs. Jones turned to Susan, who sat at her right.

"I simply can't get over that gown you're wearing," she said. "It's just too darling. Did you really make it out of your Grandmother Farmer's wedding gown?"

"Yes," said Susan. "I had to have something for evening wear. And so Grandmother Farmer's wedding gown was called into duty." She fingered a bit of trimming at her throat. "She wore it years and years ago, in the Ardendale Methodist Episcopal Church South. That was before we had a pipe organ and the new roof."

Mr. Jones smiled. "Make a note of that, Irene," he said. "We may want Susan to tell that in one of her interviews."

"Yes, sir," said Irene, and turned to the notebook at her elbow.

"Competent, aren't you?" said Roy to her, so that no one else could hear.

"Shut up," said Irene in the same manner. "I've got things to say to you later."

"I can hardly wait."

Irene wrote furiously, and Susan went on talking.

"I just wish you-all could see our little church," she said. "Tucked away among a lot of oaks, so peaceful and quiet and adorable—! She tried to make herself bluish. "I have always told myself that I'd be married there also."

"To the sweetheart you left behind you, I suppose," said Irene.

"Yes," said Susan. Then, sadly: "That is, if he ever forgives me."

"Forgive you for what, my dear?" said Mr. Jones.

"For making myself conspicuous," said Susan.

Irene, who was sitting beside Roy, whispered: "He should have seen her this afternoon."

"Shhhhh," said Roy.

"What are you two talking about?" Mr. Jones demanded.

"Business," said Irene.

"Well, forget business for the moment, and listen to Miss Farmer—"

"Yes, sir," said Irene.

"Down home," Susan said, "our menfolk still have old-fashioned ideas about the girls they marry. They still think the home is the woman's place, and don't like them to get out and—and—display themselves before the public."

"I think that's just too adorable of them," said Irene.

Rose Meyer swallowed a mouthful of tasty food and said: "But up here it's different. Lots of men are even willing for their women to support them."

"Sure," said Lily. "I know a man right now who's dying to marry me when I grow up, because he thinks I'll inherit the Dainty Diana Dairies, and be able to support him in—"

"In the style," said Rose, "to which he's a darned long way from being accustomed."

"Girls, girls!" said Mrs. Meyer. Mrs. Jones groaned way down inside of herself—and prayed the twins would lapse into silence and eating from now on.

Chewing, chattering. . . Chattering, chewing.

And then in came the piece de resistance, a huge frozen custard in the shape of one of the Dainty Diana Dairies cows.

"Ah!" said that one.

"Oh!" said that one.

Compliments. . . Eagerly waiting mouths.

"I thought," said Mrs. Jones, "that we ought to have something to give the dinner a sort of atmosphere."

"Wonderful!" said this one.

"Marvelous!" said that one.

"I hope," said Rose to Lily, "it's not got a lot of chocolate in it."

"Why?" said Lily to Rose.

"Because chocolate always makes me bilious," Rose replied.

"What a shame to have to cut her up," said Susan. "She's such a darling, darling animal. If Esmeralda hadn't been ill last winter, and lost a lot of weight, she'd look just like that adorable custard."

Everyone laughed but Irene. She again spoke to Roy in an undertone.

"I wonder just how long she can keep it up without breaking," she said.

"Keep what up?" Roy asked.

"That act she's putting on."

"If you had one-tenth the intuition you women are supposed to have," said Roy, "you'd know she isn't putting on an act."

"Says you," was Irene's slangy and unpleasant retort.

Presently the custard cow was reduced to a shambles, and Mrs. Jones announced that coffee and liqueurs would be served in the drawing room.

Everyone moved out of the long, beautifully appointed dining room, down a hall hung with portraits. Roy fell into step with Susan.

"It was a nice dinner, wasn't it?" he said.

"Yes," said Susan. "Only I've been pretty unhappy."

"What about?"

"About this afternoon. I could see Irene Carter simply loathing me."

"Forget it," said Roy. "After all, you were irresistible, and—and—I kissed you. So what?"

"Then you didn't really mean it?" said Susan. "How nice."

"What I mean is—"

"Never mind," said Susan. "I was just a passing fancy, in a way, since you're going to marry Miss Carter. As I told you, I'm not the sort of girl to interfere with another girl's happiness."

"But, Susan, wait. Don't you understand? What I mean is—"

"Excuse me," said Susan. "Here comes Mr. Jones. He's going to explain some of the portraits to me—especially the terribly, terribly modern ones."

"But, Susan—"

Luther League Elects Officers For New Year

Ned Dresbach To Lead Unit; Good Program Given

Election of officers for 1942 was held at the December session of the Luther League, Tuesday, in the parish house of Trinity Lutheran Church, Ned Dresbach being chosen to lead the organization for the coming year. Don Wolf was elected vice president; Theodore Koch, treasurer; Mrs. Gladys Troutman, recording secretary; Miss Sara Jane Cook, reporting secretary; Mrs. John Kellstadt, pianist; and Gladys Troutman, chorister. John Kellstadt was in the chair for the business session approximately 45 members being present.

The group planned to join the Von Bora Society and other organizations of the church in sending Christmas gifts to the boys from the church in service. Gifts to be sent are small pocket testaments and prayer books. Mrs. Gladys Troutman and Miss Edna Mae Henn volunteered to make covers for the flags in the church. Miss Margaret Adkins, secretary, submitted her November report.

Miss Virginia Palm, delegate to the State Convention at Clyde, gave an interesting report. The topic of the convention was "Youth of the Church, March On." Theodore Koch was another member at the convention and Ned Dresbach was a candidate for the presidency of the Ohio District.

Musical entertainment under the leadership of Mrs. George L. Troutman included a vocal duet, "There's a Song in the Air," by David Walters and Walter Melvin; two piano solos, "Jingle Bells" and "Silent Night," Miss Ruth Eather Blum, Miss Vera Zaenglein, violinist, concluding the first part of the program with "Angels' Serenade."

President Kellstadt appointed the committee to decorate the church for Christmas, the members being Ned Dresbach, chairman, Mr. and Mrs. William Barthelmas, the Misses Barbara Carey, Miriam Brown, Norma Brown, Betty Barnes, Mrs. George L. Troutman, Carl Tracy and Richard Binkley.

A sextet comprised of: Barbara Caskey, Eleanor Thomas, Marvinne Hemmes, Virginia Palm and Mary Virginia Crites sang "The Cradle Song" by Fritz Kreisler.

The origin of Martin Luther's "Cradle Hymn" was presented by Gladys Troutman. Mrs. Gilbert Bigington and daughter, Jean Louise, with the Rev. Mr. Troutman serving as narrator.

President and Mrs. Kellstadt were in charge of the distribution of gifts and the refreshments which concluded the meeting.

New members signing the constitution were the Misses Ruth Melvin, Jean Trimmer, Rosemary Conkel, Mrs. Marguerite Barthelmas and Walter Melvin.

Otterbein Guild The December session of the Otterbein Guild was held Tuesday in the community house, a short business session in charge of Mrs. J. R. Kirkpatrick being followed by prayer by Miss Lucille Kirkwood.

Miss Kirkwood read the call to worship, the program being opened with a reading, "A Happy Christmas," by Miss Margaret Down; scripture readings, the Misses Mary Ellen Kirkpatrick, Isabelle Noggle and Ruth Gard; prayer period; reading, "Christmas Home Samaritan," Mrs. Kirkpatrick.

Miss Ruth Noggle and Miss Lilian Thompson served refreshments at the close of the meeting.

Loyal Daughters' Class

Mrs. Porter Martin of Circleville, Route 3, delightfully entertained the Loyal Daughters' Class of the United Brethren Church, Tuesday, with Mrs. John Kerns, Mrs. Clarence Valentine and Mrs. George Mast as assisting hostesses. Forty-five members and visitors gathered for the occasion.

The devotionals in charge of Mrs. Elmer Stebelton included Christmas carols and readings in keeping with the season by Mrs. Martin, Mrs. Russell Jones and Mrs. A. N. Gruesser.

The scripture lesson taken from Luke 2:7-14 and Psalms 19:14 was read by Mrs. Stebelton. Piano solos by Dolores Hawkes and Announcement has been made of the engagement and coming marriage of Miss Mildred May Beougher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd F. Beougher of near Amanda, to Mr. Robert Henry Lutz, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lutz of near Lancaster. The wedding will be an event of late December.

Miss Beougher, a graduate of Stoutsville High School, is an employee of the Anchor Hoisting Glass Corporation of Lancaster. Mr. Lutz attended Bliss College after graduating from Lancaster

High School and is employed in the home office of the Farm Bureau Mutual Insurance Co., Columbus.

Christmas Decorations

A class in Christmas Decorations is being planned for children by the Columbus Garden Center, 50 East Broad Street, Columbus. Planned originally for a class of Campfire Bluebirds, the children's class will be conducted Saturday, December 13, at 10 a. m. at the Garden Center, by Miss Adelaide Burdge, 214 Fallia Road, who is chairman of the committee for Junior work.

Miss Burdge, who will be assisted by Mrs. Edna Goen, Miss Maude Steelman and Mrs. Chester Bishop, is extending an invitation to all children to attend this class for which there is no admission charge.

Monday Club

Mrs. Robert T. Kelsey will have a paper on "A Colonial Christmas" and Mrs. Tom A. Benick and the Music Division will present the "Nutcracker of Nuremberg" at the meeting of The Monday Club in the Library Trustees' room, Memorial Hall, Monday at 7:30 p. m. Miss Pearl Marshall is chairman of the music division.

This will be an open meeting and members are permitted to take guests.

Circleville Benevolent Association

Plans for the annual Christmas dinner project of the Circleville Benevolent Association were discussed at the December meeting of the organization, Tuesday, in the city cottage. Miss Florence Dutton conducted the meeting and received the reports of Mrs. W. W. Robinson, secretary, and Miss Clara Southward, case worker.

It was reported that many organizations of the community had contributed various sums of money for the Christmas baskets and that several had asked for lists of families to provide with baskets of donated food. Baskets will be distributed December 24.

Miss Southward introduced the association with the minutes of the annual meeting of 1941 when the organization was responsible for a part of the salary of the health nurse and was giving assistance to many now on the city and county relief rolls. The funds of the society were better supplied at that time, according to the report.

Miss Southward's report for November showed that 35 families had been helped in some way. With the help of another organization, the Benevolent Association was enabled to secure glasses for one child and shoes for three others. Milk was supplied daily to 21 families.

Circle 4 of the W.S.C.S. of the Methodist Church held its Christmas party Tuesday at the home of Mrs. T. W. Schindler of North Court Street with Mrs. Muri F. Thornton and Mrs. Clyde Cook serving as assisting hostesses. Mrs. Neil Peterson, Mrs. G. H. Adkins and Mrs. George Hannel were guests for the evening.

A program of Christmas carols and readings was enjoyed. Gifts from a grab bag were exchanged by members.

Refreshments appropriate to the holiday season were served during the social period.

David Dunlaps Are Hosts At Colorful Pre-Holiday Party

Christmas greens and the light of many red candles made a colorful pre-holiday setting for the dinner party Tuesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David S. Dunlap, West Franklin Street, when they were hosts to members of the Sew and So Club, their husbands and a few additional guests.

A three-course turkey dinner was served at 6:30 p. m. from an attractive buffet table in the dining room, the guests being seated at small tables for the dinner hour.

An exchange of Christmas gifts was a pleasant feature of the informal affair. Games were enjoyed following the dinner.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Barnhill, Mr. and Mrs. George Goodchild, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Lutz, the Rev. and Mrs. Nell Peterson, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Nicholas, Mr. and Mrs. George Steeley, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Ulin, Mrs. Channing Vlerohome, Miss Anna and Miss Estelle Grimes, Mrs. Harry Stevenson, Miss Elizabeth Dunlap, Mrs. Florence Steele and Ted Steele of Circleville; Mr. and Mrs. Benick W. Dunlap of near Kingston and Mr. and Mrs. John H. Dunlap Sr. of near Williamsport.

Nebraska Grange

Nebraska Grange will have its annual Christmas party at the next meeting, December 16, in the grange hall. Each granger is reminded to take a 10-cent gift for the exchange and a pound of candy or a dozen popcorn balls for the holiday treat. A fine Christmas program is being prepared.

You-Go-I-Go Club

Twenty-four members and guests enjoyed the delightful Christmas party of the You-Go-I-Go Club, Tuesday, at the home of Mrs. Noah G. Spangler of West High Street. Christmas greens and symbols made the home attractive for the party.

Dinner was served at 5:30 p. m. and gifts were exchanged during the informal social evening.

Club Social Session

Mrs. John Bell of Columbus Pike was hostess at the annual social session and Christmas party of her

Birthday Party

Mr. and Mrs. Turney Kraft of Washington Township honored their daughter, Faye, at a delightful party Tuesday in honor of her sixteenth birthday anniversary. Games and music entertained the group during the evening which was concluded with a seasonal lunch.

Miss Kraft was remembered with many useful gifts.

Would You EAT—

Half a peck of string beans in one day? If six pounds, or half a peck of fresh string beans were laid end to end, it might, or might not be a good idea, but you'd have to eat just that many beans if you were to receive the daily calcium required by your system.

HERE'S A TIP—

Just one quart of Circle City Dairy Milk contains as much calcium as does 19 one pound loaves of white bread.

NOTICE OF AP

10 BOYS LEAVE FOR HAYES; 22 ON 'QUICK' LIST

Ermil Stonerock Leader Of Contingent Starting Training Trip

MANY FIGURES QUOTED

Pickaway County Board's Total Registration Fixed At 2,953

Ten men, making up Pickaway County's thirty-second contingent, were sent to Fort Hayes, Wednesday, to be inducted into military service, leaving 22 men on the local board's quick call list.

Leader of the group which left Circleville was Ermil Edwood Stonerock, Circleville Route 2.

Total number of registrants inducted through the local board now totals 204, according to an accumulative progress report, released by Selective Service officials.

The local board's total registration is 2,953, six of whom are reported deceased since registration. Most registrants have been placed in Class 3-A, being deferred because of dependency. Other figures from the report follow:

Number of objectors to combatant service awaiting induction, 1; number of registrants awaiting limited military service, 105; number of registrants in class 1-C, for whom home address reports have been received, 17; number of enlisted registrants for whom only notification of enlistment is received, 17; number of registrants in class 1 pending physical examination, 153; number of registrants in Class 1 and over 28 years old on or before July 1, 1941, 218; number of registrants who have received occupational deferment, 25; number of registrants deferred because essential to National Defense, 11 number of registrants who have completed military service, 11; number of registrants who are public officials deferred by law, 11; number of ministers receiving deferment, 15; number of 4-F men who are mentally, physically or morally disqualified, 91; number deferred because of obvious disability, 29; number of registrants who reported at the induction station, 257; number accepted at the induction station, 204; number rejected at the induction station, 53.

Ohio Pheasants

Now that the pheasant hunting season for 1941 has passed let us discuss John Pheasant for a short time and find out where he used to live and what kind of a habitat he likes. The pheasant we know and hunt today is really an American bird. Early species introduced into this country came from England and were known as the English ringneck. This bird was the result of the inbreeding of many types of pheasant (and there are said to be about 20 pure species) in England.

The English pheasant with its mixed lineage adapted itself to the American climate and proved both its wariness and hardiness by increasing in encouraging numbers.

Some of the western states had imported pheasants from the Orient, several varieties including the Mongolian, Japanese and Chinese birds. These birds of the Far East did fairly well in our western states.

Some of the English ringneck stock were removed and released in the western states and they mixed readily with the Oriental birds and thus the American ringneck today is not unlike many other things American—a hardy stock derived from the finest bloods of pheasantry and a bird that "can take it."

The so-called black pheasant, or melanistic mutant, is a product of the state game farms and is simply a black variety of the ringneck.

The pheasant has been a life-saver for Ohio hunters, especially since the quail has been put on the song bird list. He is easily propagated either in confinement or out on his own. The cooperative efforts of farmers, sportsmen, and school groups with the Ohio Division of Conservation have been largely responsible for the success of the pheasant in Ohio. This cooperation is necessary too for perhaps no other state has more pressure on pheasant population during the hunting season than Ohio.

John Florence, superintendent of the Washington Township Schools, reports that he shot a ruffed grouse in eastern Pickaway County during the hunting season.

New Animal Booklet

A free copy of "A Key to Mammals of Ohio," by David T. Katz, may be secured by writing to the Ohio Wildlife Research Station, Ohio State University, Columbus.

This 34-page booklet should be of interest to all persons who care to know more about the mammals of Ohio. The key is illustrated to make it more usable and it contains a glossary of the more technical terms used.

There is a list of the mammals occurring in Ohio with their status and distribution in the state and the habitat in which they are most frequently found.

planned for the spring and fall of 1942.
